Preface

House Joint Resolution No. 530 and Senate Joint Resolution No. 345 from the 1999 Session directed a JLARC review of issues related to the care and maintenance of burial sites of Revolutionary War veterans. Virginia currently has a program to help provide for the care and maintenance of Confederate veteran gravesites, but has no similar program for veterans of the American Revolution.

This final report provides a listing of Revolutionary War veteran burials that updates a list printed in the interim report for this study. The final report also contains recommendations and funding options for a program to provide care for these burial sites.

JLARC staff estimate that there are about 560 cemetery sites and 705 grave markers that are potentially eligible for participation in a maintenance program receiving State support. Some of the sites already receive certain maintenance care, so State assistance would serve to either help defray some of the current expenditures made by caretakers, or help them provide a higher level of maintenance care. Other sites receive little or no maintenance attention. Therefore, a program of State assistance may help to stimulate new maintenance activities at these sites.

Cost estimates for a program of State-assisted maintenance care depend on a number of assumptions, and will require adjustment as the nature of the program is defined and based upon program experience. However, estimated costs at this time for a program providing State payments or tax credits of five dollars per Revolutionary War grave range from about $2,225 to $7,400 a year (plus minimal administrative expenses). A program offering baseline payments of $50 per cemetery is estimated to cost about $41,900 to $55,000 per year (including administrative costs). Finally, a program that provides funding beyond the $50 per cemetery baseline payment — for purposes that include the initial clean-up of neglected sites, extraordinary maintenance, and grants (or tax credits) to attract routine maintenance care to neglected sites — could cost around $100,000 per year in the early years of the program, and between $54,000 and $95,500 per year after the program has matured (with administrative costs included).

On the behalf of JLARC staff, I would like to thank the numerous organizations and individuals who assisted us during the review. Many of these are listed as sources in an appendix of this report. In particular, such a report would not have been possible if it were not for the work over the years of the Daughters and the Sons of the American Revolution (DAR and SAR). We also appreciate the contributions of the Department of Historic Resources, and a number of local historical and genealogical societies.

JLARC Report Summary

House Joint Resolution No. 530 and Senate Joint Resolution No. 345 from the 1999 Session direct JLARC to compile a list of sites where Revolutionary War veterans are buried and to study issues related to the care and maintenance of their burial sites. Virginia currently has a program to help provide for the care and maintenance of Confederate veteran gravesites. This program is described in §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia. However, there is no similar program for the veterans who established the country's independence during the Revolutionary War.

An interim JLARC report, printed in February 2000, focused on developing a compiled list where Revolutionary War veteran burials are reported. This final report adds to that compiled list, and addresses the number and condition of cemeteries with Revolutionary War veteran burials, as well as the number and condition of the grave markers for these veterans. The report also provides recommendations for the development of a program to provide care for these grave sites, and funding options.

JLARC staff's best estimate is that there are about 560 sites with Revolutionary War veteran burials, and about 705 grave markers that can be found today and are potentially eligible for inclusion in a maintenance program. HJR 530 requires that the study "recommend a program to restore and preserve all [Revolutionary War veteran burial] sites." The option which appears to best address this requirement could entail annual State funding of slightly above $100,000 in the early stages of the program, and about $54,600 to $95,500 once the program has matured. At least in the early stages of the program, about half of these expenditures would be to meet the costs of developing the program, coordinating the program over time, and administering the funding. The other half of the expenditures are for grants (or tax credits) to help pay the costs of preservation activities at the cemeteries.

Cemetery Site Visits Were Conducted for the Second Phase of the Review

JLARC staff compiled a list of 1,481 veterans, excluding the Colonial National Historical Park at Yorktown, and 2,217 in total, that are reportedly buried or recognized at specific locations in Virginia. As shown in the figure on the next page, many of the localities with the greatest number of burials reported are in the Shenandoah Valley and the southwestern part of the State.

Localities with the Most Veterans Reportedly Buried or Specifically Recognized

The compiled list of veteran gravesites was “tested”, to determine the extent to which the gravesites that have been reported can actually be found. JLARC staff conducted visits to 39 locations where Revolutionary War veteran burials had been reported.

During these visits, JLARC staff sought to find the reported cemeteries and grave markers. The general condition of the cemeteries and grave markers were observed. In most cases, a photograph of the marker was taken, and a hand-held GPS (global positioning system) was used to note the longitude and latitude of the site. (Data obtained from the site visit process is contained in Appendix D of the report). Based on the site visits, it appears that most of the cemeteries with reported veteran burials can still be “found” today, and typically do have one or more markers that are intact. The condition of the cemeteries visited and of the grave markers varied considerably.

Best Estimate Is that About 560 Sites with 705 Grave Markers Are Potentially Eligible for a Maintenance Program

By extrapolating from the compiled list of veteran burials and the results from the in-depth examination of selected sites, JLARC staff developed estimates of the number of cemeteries and grave markers in the Commonwealth that are potentially eligible for a maintenance program. The range in these estimates, as well as the best estimates, are shown in the table on the next page.

Preservation Costs at Cemeteries with Revolutionary War Veteran Graves Include Both Routine Cemetery Care and Extraordinary Maintenance

Routine maintenance costs at the cemeteries with at least one Revolutionary War veteran grave may range from $100,000 to $800,000, with a single best cost estimate statewide of $336,000. The best estimate is based on a typical cost of $600 per cem-

* Data excludes the Colonial National Historical Park at Yorktown. At the national park, 637 veterans of France who served and died in the American Revolution are recognized at the French Memorial Cemetery, and there are 99 colonial veterans who are honored on a memorial tablet. It is estimated that only about 50 of the 637 French veterans are actually buried at the cemetery. It is not known which veterans among the 637 are the ones buried at the cemetery, or how many and which ones are actually buried anywhere on Virginia soil. Similarly, the exact gravesite locations of the veterans on the memorial tablet are not known.

etary per year. This typical cost can provide for routine maintenance (for example, mowing) at a typical family cemetery, or in the oldest section of a larger cemetery, that contains about 50 to 100 graves. The total cost, of course, addresses many graves for individuals buried near Revolutionary War veterans who were not veterans, or not veterans of that war. The cost figure still provides a relevant context, because in most cases, either care is provided throughout the cemetery (or cemetery section), or it is not provided at all. The typical maintenance program for the cemeteries does not provide care to just a few gravesites, while neglecting the other gravesites in the same vicinity.

To the extent that routine maintenance is provided at these cemeteries, the costs are often paid from established cemetery budgets (for example, at a church cemetery), trust funds, and through donations. Oftentimes, donations may be from descendants of those buried at the cemetery.

Preservation costs at the cemeteries also include extraordinary maintenance costs, such as fence and monument repairs, or tree removal. By their nature, these costs are less predictable, but can at times be much greater in magnitude, than the costs of routine care.

Recommendations and Illustrative Options for a Maintenance Program for Revolutionary War Veteran Gravesites

Virginia's Department of Historic Resources (DHR) currently has statutory responsibility for the State's existing veteran gravesite program (the Confederate gravesites program). After years of administering this program, DHR contracted with the United Daughters of the Confederacy (the UDC). The UDC now handles the disbursement of funds, and obtains information and documentation from fund recipients. The 2000 Appropriation Act provides $59,690 in FY 2001 and $59,690 in FY 2002 for the purposes prescribed in §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia.

Cemeteries and organizations participating in the Confederate gravesite program are enumerated in the Code of Virginia. Prior to 1989, dollar amounts to be received by the cemeteries and organizations were listed. From 1980 to 1989, the least payment provided by the statutory list was $50 per cemetery or organization taking care of a site or sites. Thus, the program operated at that time with an implicit floor payment of $50, with some sites receiving more based on need.

In 1989, statutory dollar amounts provided in the Code were converted into a number of units to be maintained, based on a conversion factor of five dollars per unit. The UDC administrator of the program has been seeking information on the number of graves maintained by the recipients, and has been adjusting funded amounts somewhat to more often align each organization's funding with the five dollars per grave amount.

The third chapter of this report discusses issues regarding the development of a program to provide care for Revolutionary War veteran gravesites. The program that may be most appropriate for these gravesites could differ in some important respects from the State's existing gravesite program. The features and costs of a State program to promote the preservation of Revolutionary War veteran gravesites depend to a large extent upon what objectives are pursued through the program.

Seven potential objectives for a Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program are discussed in the report, including:

- preserve information about the burials for future generations,
- offer a program of care similar to the State's other graves program,
- provide some support to existing caretakers of the sites,
- provide support to attract custodial care at neglected sites,
- provide support to help with extraordinary preservation needs,
- identify veteran grave sites that are not currently evident, or
- a step in promoting the care of old and small cemeteries in Virginia.

The mandates for the study do not express the objectives for the program at this level of detail. However, the study was guided in its recommendations by the requirement of HJR 530 that the program "restore and preserve all [Revolutionary War veteran burial] sites." This charge meant that several of the objectives above that go beyond routine maintenance at the cemeteries (such as attracting care to neglected sites, assisting with extraordinary preservation needs, and clearing cemeteries to find sites not currently evident) should be addressed in the recommended program.

The report offers 12 recommendations for the development of a program. The report provides a discussion of the recommendations and states each recommendation in full. The report recommendations are shown below and on the next page of the summary (some are shown in an abbreviated form).

Recommendation (1). The General Assembly may wish to consider establishing a State program to assist with routine maintenance costs, and the purchase of durable plaques for tombstones as necessary, at cemeteries with at least one documented Revolutionary War veteran burial. The General Assembly may wish to establish a $50 minimum reimbursement or tax credit per eligible cemetery that is maintained.

Recommendation (2). In addition to providing funding for routine maintenance, the General Assembly may wish to consider providing $10,000 and $40,000 per year to provide support toward statewide costs for the initial cleanup of neglected cemeteries, to attract and sustain care to neglected sites, and to provide for extraordinary maintenance needs. The General Assembly may also wish to require that the entity administering the program on behalf of the State develop and publish criteria or guidelines for use in setting priorities where the State funding requested for these purposes exceeds available funds.

Recommendation (3). In the short-term, the Department of Historic Resources should be provided the resources needed to effectively establish, promote awareness of, and administer the program. Once the program has been effectively established, and if an appropriate organization expresses an interest, then DHR could contract with that organization with that organization for the continued administration of the program.

Recommendation (4). As part of the initial application process for participation in the program, certain documentation about the underlying condition of sites should be required.

Recommendation (5). DHR should maintain a list of cemetery sites for which appropriate documentation has been received, and continue to add to the list each year as new applications are received. This responsibility would be transferred to the contractor if the program is contracted out, although DHR should require an updated copy of the list from the contractor every six to twelve months.

Recommendation (6). DHR should pursue creative ways of linking cemetery sites that are maintained with other State and local tourism programs, and consider sponsoring certain promotional activities that could raise additional funds for gravesite maintenance.

Recommendation (7). The General Assembly may wish to require that DHR, at the time that it conducts a biennial survey process to assess Confederate per-grave maintenance costs as required by §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia, also assess Revolutionary War veteran per-grave costs, for use in funding those cemeteries where the costs calculated on a per-grave basis would exceed fifty dollars per year.

Recommendation (8). If directed by the General Assembly to assess per-grave costs for Revolutionary War veteran graves, DHR should include smaller cemeteries in its sample than were in its most recent sample for the Confederate graves program, and it should ensure that the survey process is completed biennially.

Recommendation (9). The General Assembly may wish to direct that a survey be conducted to assess the willingness of local governments with Revolutionary War veteran burial sites to voluntarily set aside some funding, now and over time, for potential use as a match for State funds to provide for initial cemetery clean-up and extraordinary maintenance needs as they arise.

Recommendation (10). The General Assembly may wish to consider a match requirement for recipient organizations and local governments for projects receiving State funds that go beyond the baseline payments made for routine maintenance.

Recommendation (11). DHR should require that recipients provide information to establish that expenditures on cemetery maintenance equaled or exceeded State funding plus any match requirements during the fiscal year for which the funding was provided.

Recommendation (12). DHR should develop materials that explain the philosophy of cemetery preservation and address appropriate and inappropriate cemetery preservation practices. DHR should make these materials available to recipients of funds under the program.

One of the concerns that a Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program would be intended to address is that there is currently no systematic, coordinated effort that assembles information across the State, promotes the maintenance of the sites, and brings interested organizations together to preserve these sites. It should also be noted that many of the 12 recommendations address the role of DHR (or other program administrator, if DHR is not used).

If a program is established with an intent to achieve most of these recommendations, then the role of the central administering entity in developing, coordinating, and managing the program could be key to the program's success. In the early stages of the program, this entity should help to: ensure the integrity of the initial eligibility determinations; ensure that the State has good documentation about the sites; develop criteria to use in determining priorities if funds are available for special maintenance purposes (such as clearing sites or extraordinary maintenance), and there are more project applications than available funds; and ensure that the maintenance efforts that are undertaken with State funds are conducted in an informed manner. These activities will require some commitment of program management resources, especially in the early stages.

Three illustrative options (see below) were developed for the study that address, to varying degrees, the potential objectives for a Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program. The illustrative option which appears to best address the study mandates

Illustrative Funding Options for Revolutionary War Veteran Gravesite Program (Annual Grant or Tax Credit Cost Plus Costs for Program Administration)
Option	Annual Program Funding		Comments
	Early Stage (2-5 Years)	Mature Program
1. Five-dollar per-grave payment	$2,225 to $7,400 plus administrative expenses	Same.	Would provide a token level of support to existing cemetery caretakers.
2. Baseline payment of $50 per cemetery (also includes five dollars per grave at sites with more than ten markers, as well as program development and administration costs)	$55,500	$41,900	Would provide a meaningful level of support for routine maintenance.
3. Baseline payment as above, plus $10,000 to $40,000 per year for additional maintenance purposes, and the costs for a full-time program manager in the early stages of the program	$103,000 to $108,300	$54,600 to $95,500	Option best addresses the objective of HJR 530 to "recommend a program to restore and preserve all [Revolutionary War veteran burial] sites." With proper implementation and support at the local level, the option should substantially aid in the achievement of various program objectives identified in the last chapter of the report.

is the third option, which may cost around $103,000 to $108,300 in the first five years, and decline to around $54,600 and $95,500 as initial gravesite clean-up projects come to closure. In the early years of the program, the costs for this illustrative option are divided about equally between program development and management costs (estimated at one FTE position with total compensation of $54,400) and the costs of maintenance payments or tax credits. The program management costs under the option would decrease as the program matures.

The costs shown for the illustrative options are rough estimates based on assumptions discussed in the report. Funding levels should be adjusted as experience with the program provides more definitive information about program participation levels and the needs of the sites that are brought forward for inclusion in the program.

I. Introduction

House Joint Resolution No. 530 and Senate Joint Resolution No. 345 from the 1999 Session direct JLARC to compile a list of sites where Revolutionary War veterans are buried and to study issues related to the care and maintenance of their burial sites (Appendix A). Virginia currently has a program to provide for the care and maintenance of Confederate veteran gravesites, but does not have a similar program for Revolutionary War veteran gravesites.

This is the second of two reports that have been prepared to meet the study mandates. This final report addresses the number and conditions of cemeteries with one or more reported Revolutionary War veteran graves, and the number and condition of markers for those veterans. It also provides recommendations for the development of a program to provide care for these cemeteries and markers, and funding options. An interim report provided a preliminary, compiled list of where Revolutionary War veteran graves have been reported.

BACKGROUND REGARDING THE COMPILED LIST OF REPORTED VETERAN GRAVESITES FROM THE INTERIM REPORT

It is unclear how many Virginians actually served in the Revolution, and the number that are buried in Virginia is also not known. The Historical Register of Virginians in the Revolution, developed by John Gwathmey and published in 1938, contains approximately 65,000 entries for Virginians who served. (Some of these entries appear to be duplications, but that is difficult to establish with certainty for each individual case. On the other hand, some veterans are undoubtedly missing from the historical record). It is fairly certain that the number of veterans actually buried in Virginia is considerably less than the number who served, since many Virginians left the State after the war, and far fewer veterans from other states moved to and were buried in Virginia.

Further, the number of Revolutionary War veteran graves that can be located in Virginia today is known to be much smaller than the number buried here. Burial practices in 18th and 19th century Virginia often make it difficult to determine where people were interred. Often people were buried on their property in unmarked graves or in graves marked with wooden crosses or simple fieldstones with no inscriptions. Development and disuse have pushed some small cemeteries or single graves from memory. Animals or vandals have been destructive to a number of gravesites.

Despite these limitations, however, burial locations for a substantial number of Revolutionary War veterans are known, or at least have been reported publicly as known over the last several decades. The Daughters of the American Revolution, the Sons of the American Revolution, and others have conducted activities over the years to identify and note these burial locations, and they continue to do so.

As is discussed in more detail in the interim report for this review, national lists reported graves of many Virginia veterans of the Revolutionary War are available, and many locality-specific listings of veteran graves (often done by individuals who record data from cemeteries as a hobby) are also available. However, a listing that attempts to compile all of these sources to develop a statewide listing has been lacking. This task was undertaken for the interim report.

JLARC staff used over 100 sources in compiling a list of the burial locations. In the interim report, a total of 1,444 veterans reportedly buried or recognized at cemeteries other than at the Colonial National Historical Park in Yorktown were compiled. (An additional 637 French veterans are recognized at the historical park, as well as 99 veterans who are memorialized by a tablet at the park. If these veterans are included, the total number of veterans reported as recognized or buried was 2,180). The interim report also identified 66 cemeteries in which three or more Revolutionary War veterans are reportedly buried or recognized. Extensive appendixes provided in the interim report displayed the information that was obtained regarding these veterans and the sources that were used to develop the compiled list.

CURRENT JLARC REVIEW

Since the time of the interim report, JLARC staff continued to add information to the compiled list of Revolutionary War veteran burials, as well as to make corrections or deletions to the list as appeared appropriate. However, it was also clear that the mandates for the study require more than the development of this compiled list. HJR 530, for example, requires that JLARC “recommend a program to restore and preserve all such sites, including the role of public and private entities in such site restoration and preservation.” SJR 345 requires that the study consider the “number and locations” of graves and cemeteries of the Revolutionary War veterans in the Commonwealth, the “annual funding that may be required to maintain and restore such graves,” and the potential contributions of associations to the maintenance and restoration of such graves “in the event that state or local governments provide resources.”

To accomplish these requirements, there was a need to “test” the compiled list, to determine the extent to which the gravesites that had been reported can actually be found. There was also a need to assess the general condition of the cemeteries and graves that can be located, and to determine the typical maintenance costs that might be associated with the sites. Information on the number and condition of the sites statewide is important for drawing conclusions about the likely scope and costs of a program to provide care for the sites, and hence for determining the kind of program that would make sense to address these needs.

This final report estimates the number of cemeteries and gravesites statewide that might be eligible for a maintenance and preservation program. To derive this information, JLARC staff conducted a targeted inquiry at the local level, including site visits, to a subgroup of the cemeteries that were reported on the compiled list. At the cemeteries, the condition of the cemetery and the graves was noted, photographs of many Revolutionary War soldier markers were taken, and global positioning system (GPS) readings were made. The data gathered from the site visits were used to estimate the statewide number of sites, and the costs that might be entailed to maintain the sites. This information was used in conjunction with information gathered through interviews to identify potential program objectives, make recommendations for a State program to assist with the costs of maintenance and care of the gravesites, and identify funding options.

Updates to the Compiled List for the Interim Report

Since the time of the interim report, a number of additions, corrections, and deletions have been made to the compiled list of reported Revolutionary War veteran burials. Specifically, six sources reported that 19 veterans are buried at ten sites that had not been identified during the interim review. A document that was sent to JLARC staff indicated that there are two additional Revolutionary War veterans buried at one churchyard cemetery with other already-reported veterans. As a result of further research, JLARC staff also identified 24 veterans reportedly buried at 12 sites that had not been included in the interim report, and these veterans and sites were also added to the compiled list. JLARC staff were also informed or determined that eight entries for the interim report could be deleted. In addition, seven entries were corrected in terms of the modern-day locality in which the reported cemetery is located, and there were a number of other entries for which corrections were made to the spelling of veteran names or for which more detailed information was added.

Accounting for these updates, the number of veterans reportedly buried or recognized at specific locations in Virginia is 1,481 excluding the Colonial National Historical Park, and 2,217 in total. This is a net increase of 37 entries from the time of the interim report. (These new figures are not adjusted, at this stage in the discussion, to exclude veterans who did not appear to be recognized by a burial marker at the cemeteries that were visited during this review). Updated lists of the veterans reportedly buried or recognized at specific locations are provided in Appendixes B-1 to B-6. Appendix C lists 73 cemeteries with three or more Revolutionary War veterans reportedly buried there.

Figure 1 shows the 12 localities in Virginia with the most veterans reportedly buried or recognized. It is an update of a figure from the interim report. Again, these numbers are not adjusted to exclude any reported veterans based on site visit results. The figure indicates that many of the localities with the greatest number of reported veteran burial locations are in the Shenandoah Valley region of the State.

A Portion of the Cemetery Sites Were Reviewed in Greater Detail

In the second phase of the review, JLARC staff reviewed a subset of the cemeteries that reportedly have Revolutionary War veteran burial sites. In total, 45 sites received this more in-depth review (see Table 1). Nineteen of these sites were reviewed only to assess the conditions at those particular sites. This included a category of sites with more than 25 veterans reported buried or recognized there. There were six of these cemeteries, and all six were visited. Thirteen other sites were visited for unique reasons.

In addition, there were 26 more reported burial sites that were reviewed in-depth as part of a subgroup from the total list. Data from the review of these 26 sites (11 public cemeteries and 15 family cemeteries) were used as proxy measures to help estimate conditions at similar sites that were not selected for in-depth inquiry.

Six Cemeteries with More than 25 Veterans Were Visited. All six of the cemeteries in Virginia that reportedly had 25 or more Revolutionary War veteran burials were visited during the second phase of the review (see Table 2). The benefit of visiting these sites was that the presence or absence of markers for a large number of veterans could be readily determined at these sites.

The 210 veterans reported at these sites constituted 14 percent of the 1,481 veterans reported (excluding the Colonial National Historical Park). The results from these visits were used to identify the ratio of maintainable items per reported veteran at these sites only, however, and not as a proxy indicator for other sites. At several of these sites, the particularly large number of veterans reported was to a great extent due to the fact that many of the veterans were recognized by a single monument or two at the site. Therefore, there were concerns about the reliability of these ratios if applied to sites with fewer veterans reported.

Thirteen Sites Were Visited Based on a Unique Interest in Those Cemeteries. Thirteen sites were visited during the review for unique reasons. These sites and the unique reasons for their inclusion as site visits are identified in Table 3.

At most of these sites, specific and credible knowledge was available before the visit at least suggesting that the sites could be found in modern-day Virginia and the probable number of Revolutionary War veteran markers that could be observed at the site. Thus, these sites were not ideal for use as part of a “test” of the overall compiled list, and the data from these sites were not used as proxy measures to help estimate conditions at sites that could not be reviewed in-depth within the scope of the study.

Eleven Smaller, Public Cemeteries and Fifteen Family Cemeteries Were Reviewed to Understand Typical Conditions at these Categories of Sites. In addition to the visited sites already described, 26 sites were reviewed in-depth and were used as proxies to help estimate conditions at sites not visited. These sites included public cemeteries (such as church cemeteries) as well as family or individual burial grounds. For these sites, it was unclear what a current-day assessment of the site would reveal, in terms of whether the cemetery or the burial sites that had been reported could indeed be located. The data from the search for these cemetery sites and the grave markers were used to help estimate how many of the total reported cemeteries and burial sites might be eligible for a maintenance and restoration program, and in turn what the costs might be to maintain the sites. The location and condition of the sites, and the use of results from this review to develop overall estimates for the study, are discussed in more detail in Chapter II.

Research Process for Sites that Were Identified for In-depth Inquiry and Possible Visitation. In most cases, an in-depth inquiry regarding a selected burial site was conducted by a visit to the site, often preceded by: (1) telephone calls to the sources that provided the data for the compiled list or to the local historical society, or (2) a stop at the genealogy room of a library nearby or in the communities with the reported cemeteries. The telephone calls or the visits to the genealogy rooms were typically made to pursue more specific information or directions to the cemeteries that were selected for potential visitation. In some instances, this background work identified specific information about the location of the gravesites. In a few instances, the background work revealed that there was insufficient information about a modern-day location of the reported burial site to even attempt a visit.

Upon entry of each cemetery that could be found, JLARC staff observed the general conditions of the cemetery, and walked through the cemetery, looking for markers (used broadly here to include markers, tombstones, or monuments) for the soldiers that had been reported on the compiled list, or for as-yet unreported markers for Revolutionary War veterans. Once a marker was found, the type of marker was noted, as well as the general condition of the maintainable marker and any inscription on it. In most cases, a photograph of the item was taken, and a hand-held GPS was used to note the longitude and latitude of the site.

The GPS readings were regarded as a potential aid for future visitors in finding some of the more difficult-to-locate sites. The information obtained on the number and condition of cemeteries and grave markers was used to help estimate costs and develop recommendations for a State program to provide maintenance and care for the gravesites.

Other Research Activities

The information gained from the site visits helped provide a context for making recommendations regarding the development of a maintenance and restoration program for the Revolutionary War veteran sites. To further aid in the development of recommendations, JLARC staff: (1) attended a workshop on cemetery preservation, (2) reviewed cemetery preservation literature, (3) reviewed selected documents related to the contract between the Department of Historic Resources (DHR) and the United Daughters of the Confederacy (UDC) and the disbursement of funds from that program, and (4) conducted several interviews. Two of the key interviews for the review were conducted with the member of the DHR staff and the member of the UDC that have been most involved with the administration of the State maintenance program for Confederate veterans. In addition, telephone interviews were conducted regarding cemetery preservation efforts in other states. These interviews were conducted with officials in 15 northeastern and southern states.

REPORT ORGANIZATION

This report is organized into three chapters. The first chapter of this report has provided background information on the scope of the review and research activities for the interim and final reports on Revolutionary War veteran gravesites.

Chapter II estimates the number of Revolutionary War veteran cemeteries and gravesites that can be found in modern-day Virginia, and describes the typical condition of these cemeteries and gravesites. The information reported in this chapter is based on the site visits conducted by JLARC staff. The site visit data are used to estimate results for the entire compiled list of veterans that was first developed in the interim report and then updated during the current review.

Chapter III provides an assessment of issues concerning the development of a State program to assist with the maintenance and care of Revolutionary War veteran gravesites. This assessment builds on the data obtained from the staff site visits to estimate the potential number of sites statewide that might be eligible for such a program, and the potential associated costs. Recommendations and illustrative funding options are provided for a program addressing the preservation of these sites.

II. Revolutionary War Veteran Gravesites in Modern-Day Virginia

The list of Revolutionary War veteran burial sites that was provided in the interim report represented an effort to compile all of the specific burial sites that have been reported over the years. However, while the sources reported veterans buried at particular cemeteries, in many instances there was no indication as to whether the cemetery still exists or has disappeared, and whether a gravestone, marker or monument honoring the veteran existed at the time the information was reported. Further, some of the information that was included was reported many years ago, and conditions at the cemeteries could have changed.

Thus, it was clear that the information requested by the study mandates could not be adequately met simply by using the compiled list from the interim report. Several key questions needed to be addressed in order to estimate the number of sites that can be found and that would be eligible for a maintenance and restoration program, and to estimate the costs of care at those sites. These questions included the following.

- (1) Of the cemeteries that are reported to have Revolutionary War veteran gravesites, can most be found today, and do these cemeteries typically have identifiable grave markers for Revolutionary War veterans?
- (2) What is the current condition of the grounds surrounding the Revolutionary War veteran markers? What is the current condition of the tombstones or markers?
- (3) Statewide, how many cemeteries with Revolutionary War veteran burials, and how many grave markers, are estimated to be eligible for a program to provide maintenance and care?

Based on the site visits that were conducted for this final report, it appears that most of the cemeteries with reported Revolutionary War veteran burials can still be “found” today, and typically do indeed have one or more “markers” (a term used broadly in this report to include tombstones, markers, or monuments) that are intact today. The gravesites can be found in a variety of settings, ranging from sites that co-exist with the hustle and bustle of modern-day activity to sites that are secluded deep in the woods (Exhibit 1).

The condition of the cemeteries visited and the grave markers that were observed varied considerably. Some of the cemeteries are so overgrown that is difficult to find the markers, and visitation can be hazardous. Other cemeteries were clearly maintained with regularity. Some gravestones appeared to be structurally sound, and had readable inscriptions or were clearly marked by modern-day organizations. Other gravestones showed evidence of past repairs, had cracks, were chipped or broken, or had inscriptions that were difficult to read, with no modern-day plaques accompanying them to help ensure that they are not “lost” in the near future.

For the cemetery category types used in the analysis, the average ratio of “found markers” to “the veterans that have been reported” ranged between about 0.29 to about 0.60. As a result of the findings from the site visits, JLARC staff’s best estimate is that there are about 560 cemetery sites (with about 705 markers) that are potentially eligible for a Revolutionary War veteran gravesite maintenance and restoration program.

THE MAJORITY OF CEMETERIES EXAMINED IN DETAIL HAD IDENTIFIABLE GRAVE MARKERS FOR REVOLUTIONARY WAR VETERANS

All 17 of the “public cemeteries” from the JLARC staff compiled list that were reviewed in detail during the second phase of the study could still be found today. Further, at all of these sites, there was at least one marker, monument, or memorial to Revolutionary War veterans that could be found, although often there were fewer markers that were found than veterans that had been reported.

At the 15 non-public (family) cemeteries selected for this more in-depth review process, eight were found to have at least one Revolutionary War veteran burial marker. Several factors contributed to a conclusion that seven of the sites are unlikely to exist or to be found today.

At the Six Public Cemeteries which Each Had More than 25 Veterans Reported, 61 Discrete Markers Were Found for the 210 Veterans Reported

Table 4 summarizes the results from the site visits to the group of six public cemeteries which had 25 or more veterans reported. At the Augusta Stone Church, distinct markers were found for a relatively high proportion of the veterans reported. However, the ratio of identified markers to veterans was relatively low at several other sites. Exhibit 2 illustrates a key reason why this was the case. At cemeteries such as Old Peaked Mountain Church and Fincastle Presbyterian Church, most of the veterans on the compiled list do not have separate, identifiable grave markers. These veterans are recognized as a group by one or two tributary monuments.

At the Public Cemeteries Visited that Had 25 or Fewer Veterans Reported, 35 Discrete Markers Were Found, Compared to 58 Veterans Reported

Table 5 summarizes the results from site visits at 11 public cemeteries with 25 or fewer reported. As a group, the average ratio of markers to veterans reported was relatively high, at 0.60.

At the 15 Non-Public (Family) Cemeteries that Were Reviewed In-Depth, Ten Discrete Markers Were Identified for the 22 Veterans Reported

Table 6 shows the results from the second phase review regarding a subgroup of family cemeteries. It should be noted that eight of the 15 cemeteries studied (53 percent) were found to have at least one Revolutionary War veteran burial marker, and these eight cemeteries accounted for the ten discrete markers shown. At the other seven cemeteries from the compiled list, four were found to be unlikely to exist today, two are known to exist but do not appear to have identifiable markers for the Revolutionary War veterans reported, and one was found to be a duplicate listing. The overall ratio of distinct markers to reported veterans in this group was 0.45, or somewhat higher than the overall average for public cemeteries with more than 25 veterans buried, but less than the ratio for public cemeteries with relatively few veterans reported.

CONDITIONS OF CEMETERIES AND GRAVE MARKERS VARIED CONSIDERABLY

Conditions of the cemeteries and grave markers that were visited varied considerably. Some cemeteries appeared to be well-maintained. Other cemeteries were not being maintained, and were overgrown by dense thickets. Most of the grave markers appeared to be in rather good structural condition, especially given their age, but some showed signs of prior repairs, or were broken or cracked, or had inscriptions that were very difficult to read.

Cemetery Conditions at Visited Sites Varied Considerably

Exhibit 3 illustrates some of the varying conditions that were observed among the cemetery grounds that were visited. The top photograph shows a family cemetery on private property that had been recently been cleared of debris. The cemetery itself, as well as the Revolutionary War veteran honored by the tombstone and footstone shown in the photograph, were in good current condition, although, as can be observed in the photo, the stones lean to one side. The inscription on the stone was clear.

The middle photograph shows a former church cemetery, now privately-owned, that coincidentally was receiving maintenance attention at the time of the JLARC staff site visit. Two workers contracted to perform the maintenance can be seen in the photo. The workers mowed the cemetery, and then used weed-eaters to trim around the stones. This work must be done carefully, as it is possible to damage the stones through this work. There were two Revolutionary War veteran burials reported at this site, but only one marker was found in walking through the cemetery. As can be seen in the photo, while routine maintenance work was doing a good job of keeping the site cleared of weeds, tall grass, and budding trees, several of the obelisks and tombstones in the cemetery are leaning considerably.

The bottom photograph in Exhibit 3 shows a cemetery in which: (1) the upper part of the cemetery, largely consisting of graves for persons who died from the mid- to late-1800s forward, was recently mowed and easy to visit, while (2) the lower part of the cemetery, consisting of the oldest graves for persons who mostly died around or before the mid-1800s, was heavily overgrown and difficult to visit. There were many remarkable tombstones and monuments in the lower part of the cemetery, including a tombstone for a Revolutionary War veteran, that were obscured by the dense vegetation and trees.

In general, the grounds of the public cemeteries visited were well-maintained, and most of the variability in conditions was observed at the family cemeteries. However, grounds maintenance issues were also observed at some of the public cemeteries. The photograph on the left in Exhibit 4 shows the gravesite of a Revolutionary War veteran and his wife that is surrounded by a fence at a church cemetery. The fence itself was in poor condition. Moreover, the dense vegetation that can be seen behind the two stones reveals an area that is in the early stages of ordinary maintenance neglect. The photograph on the right shows a fenced-in area at the same church cemetery that has experienced the same neglect for a longer period of time. As seen in the photograph, the fence itself is nearly obscured, and the vegetation inside the fence was so heavy that only the very top of a tall marker could be readily observed. The tombstone of the Revolutionary War veteran and his wife may be similarly obscured if maintenance attention is not provided inside the fence.

Condition of Grave Markers at Visited Sites Also Varied, But Was Generally Good

Exhibit 5 shows some of the variability that was observed in the condition of grave markers at the cemeteries. The top photograph in the exhibit is an example of an old tombstone, honoring a reported Revolutionary War veteran, that appeared to be in very good condition. Further, it appeared that it had been maintained over time such that there had not been a need for any major repairs to the stone.

The middle photograph in the exhibit shows a Revolutionary War veteran gravestone that currently appears to be in reasonable condition. However, there is evidence in the middle of the stone of a major repair. The stone must have broken in two, and a substance was used to bond the halves together. Below the break, there is an all-weather plaque that was affixed to the tombstone in more recent years that identifies the individual who is named on the marker as a Revolutionary War soldier.

Exhibit 5

The plaque may also help provide for a more permanent remembrance of the veteran than is provided by the fading inscription on the stone.

The bottom photograph from the exhibit shows a monument at a church cemetery that has experienced damage. It was not uncommon during the JLARC staff site visits to see markers, particularly large ledger stones, with broken or chipped corners. However, stones with major pieces clearly missing, or seriously damaged stones, were infrequently observed. It is possible that some veteran stones which experienced serious damage in the past have been buried or discarded, or among some of the broken stones at the cemeteries that are no longer legible or identifiable as veteran markers.

Legibility of Marker Inscriptions Is a Problem

There was considerable variation in the degree to which inscriptions could be read in the sections of cemeteries with burials from the time frame when Revolutionary War veterans lived (see Exhibit 6). As can be seen in the middle photograph, some inscriptions which appeared to date from the late 1700s and the 1800s still had some clarity. It is the ledger stone for William Letcher, great grandfather of J.E.B Stuart, who was killed in 1780. The name is easy to read, and the rest of the inscription is legible when inspected in person, although portions of the stone require close study. In addition to the portion of older stones that are still legible, many markers have been placed by descendants within the last half century or so, and these are frequently legible. However, the photograph at the bottom of Exhibit 6 illustrates the difficulty of reading some of the stones. Fortunately, the stone that is shown was accompanied by a plaque in front that identified the veteran. On this stone, the "IKL" part of the last name is clear, as is a date of 1738. The plaque identifies the tombstone as remembering "Fardinan Van Sickler."

Knowledge of some veteran burial graves have undoubtedly been lost over the years, as some inscriptions have faded over time and there has been no modern plaque or marker installed near the original marker to distinguish it. Exhibit 7 provides a contemporary illustration of this problem. The old stone shown on the left side of the exhibit had no plaques or other modern identification associated with it, although a plaque for a different Revolutionary War veteran burial was near it. A close inspection of this old stone revealed that the name inscribed on the stone appears to be "John Steffey," and part of the phrase "who died June 6th 18[?]" is also still discernible.

At another spot in the cemetery, removed from the stone that appears intended to remember John Steffey, is a government-issued veteran marker for the same veteran (see right side of the Exhibit 7 photograph), and note the June 6th death date). According to the Department of Veteran's Affairs National Cemetery Administration, "by law, Government markers are not provided to be used as foot stones and should not be used to double-mark a veteran's grave." Because of the degraded quality of the inscription on what appears to be the original tombstone, the new marker may very well have been placed in the cemetery without realization of the existence of the original tombstone.

Legibility of Marker Inscriptions Varies Considerably

Exhibit 7

Knowledge of Some Grave Stones May Be Lost If Plaques Are Not Posted Near Them

Finding ways to preserve the identity of the veterans honored by markers will continue to be a challenge for the future. This is not an issue that pertains only to old stones. As is also illustrated by the newer government marker for John Steffey shown in Exhibit 7, these markers also begin to blacken, threatening the legibility of the markers for future cemetery visitors.

BEST ESTIMATE IS THAT ABOUT 560 SITES WITH 705 GRAVE MARKERS ARE POTENTIALLY ELIGIBLE FOR A MAINTENANCE PROGRAM

Senate Joint Resolution No. 345 requires that the JLARC review consider “the number” of graves and cemeteries of Revolutionary War veterans and the “annual funding that may be required to restore and maintain such graves.” To accomplish this objective, JLARC staff used its compiled list of Revolutionary War veteran cemeteries and gravesites in conjunction with the results obtained from site visits to a subset of the sites. These site visit results were described in the previous section.

Three sets of estimates were developed regarding the number of cemeteries and markers that might be eligible for funding in a maintenance program: (1) low estimates (the lower bound, or the likely minimum number of cemeteries and gravesite markers that might be eligible for such a program); (2) the best estimates of the number of cemeteries and gravesite markers that might be eligible; and (3) high estimates (the upper bound, or likely maximum number of cemeteries and markers that might be eligible for such a program). Table 7 shows these estimates. The best estimate is that there are about 560 cemeteries, with about 705 markers, that would potentially be eligible for a maintenance program.

Exhibit 8 explains in detail the assumptions that were used in deriving the estimates contained in the table. In overview, the low estimates for the number of cemeteries and gravesites are based on assuming that relatively low proportions of the cemeteries reported in the JLARC staff compiled list can actually be found, and that low proportions of markers in those cemeteries that honor Revolutionary War veterans can be identified.

The best estimates assume that the proportions of cemeteries that can be found from the compiled list, and the proportion of markers honoring Revolutionary War veterans, are roughly in proportion to the proportions of cemeteries and gravesites found during the JLARC staff visitation to a sample of the sites. The high estimates are based on the total number of sites contained in the compiled list. Two factors indicate that the high estimates based on the compiled list should be included, even though it is clear from the site visits alone that there are fewer cemeteries and markers that can be found today than have been reported. First, some of the cemeteries and/or markers for individual veterans on the list that cannot be found today may be offset by some sites that have not yet been reported to the State. Second, various individuals, organizations, or even the State could decide to erect markers to honor veterans contained on the compiled list for whom an exact burial location or a marker cannot be found today (for example, by requesting a federal government-issued marker).

Exhibit 8Development of Low, Best, and High Estimates of Revolutionary War Veteran Burial SitesCemetery Groups Used to Develop Estimates

The cemeteries were sorted into four groups: (1) cemeteries with more than 25 reported burials, (2) non-family cemeteries (mostly, churches and other cemeteries not on private property), (3) individual or family cemeteries, and (4) cemetery sites reported that cannot be clearly categorized as family versus public cemeteries, based on the information reported.

Development of Estimates for the Number of Cemeteries

All of the non-family sites (the first two categories above) that were identified for visitation were found during the review, including 11 of 11 sites with 25 veterans reported or less. Therefore, all 155 sites were included in the maximum number of cemeteries. However, it is likely that at least a small proportion of the sites not visited have disappeared. Therefore, a low and best estimate figure of 147 "other public" sites was used, based on the assumption of a 95 percent discovery rate.

Among the 15 reported individual or family sites reviewed in detail, eight sites had observable cemeteries. That is a 53 percent discovery rate. That rate was applied against the 616 sites that are in this category, producing a best estimate of 326 sites. The low estimate was based on a lower 25 percent discovery rate at one of the localities visited. The high estimate was set at 616 sites, which would only materialize if substantially more information became available about already-reported sites and if many new sites are reported.

For the 112 cemetery sites that could not be clearly categorized, the mid-point between the best discovery rates used for the non-family and family cemetery sites (95 percent and 53 percent) was used to develop a best estimate. Thus, a 74 percent discovery rate was assumed as the best estimate. The low estimate was based on the lower discovery rate that was used to develop the low estimate for the family cemeteries (25 percent discovery), and the high estimate was based on the total number of sites in the category, or 112.

Development of Estimates for the Number of Markers at the Sites

For the six cemeteries with more than 25 reported veterans, 61 markers were found, and this figure was used as the low and best estimates for this group.

For the smaller public sites and the family sites, a ratio of markers-to-veterans from Tables 5 and 6 in this report were applied (0.60 and 0.45) to develop best estimates. For the family sites, the low estimate was based on the use of 0.20 ratio (a lower ratio from one of the localities visited). For the non-family sites, a 0.50 ratio that was found at two of the 11 sites visited in that group was used as a low estimate (also see Table 6).

In the miscellaneous category, the mid-point ratio of markers-to-veterans from the family and non-family sites, or 0.525, was used to develop the best estimate. The low estimate was based on the same low marker-to-veteran ratio that was used for the family sites, or 0.20.

The high estimate for all categories was based on the number of veterans reported in the category on the compiled JLARC staff list.

III. Development of a Program to Provide Care for Revolutionary War Veteran Gravesites

HJR 530 requests that the JLARC study include recommendations for a program to restore and preserve Revolutionary War veteran grave sites. SJR 345 requests consideration of various policy issues that would need to be addressed in establishing a program. This chapter of the report, then, addresses issues surrounding the development and implementation of a State program to provide assistance for maintenance care of these sites. Within the context of the potential objectives that might be served by the program, recommendations and illustrative funding options are provided for a program to assist with the costs of preserving these sites through the use of grants or tax credits to caretakers of the cemeteries.

As discussed in Chapter II of this report, the best JLARC staff estimate of the number of cemetery sites that would be potentially eligible for participation in a maintenance program for Revolutionary War veterans is about 560. Some of the sites already receive maintenance care, and so State assistance would serve to either defray some of the current expenditures made by caretakers, or help to provide a higher level of maintenance care. Other sites receive little or no maintenance attention. Therefore, a program of State assistance may help to stimulate new maintenance activities.

Routine maintenance costs (mowing, weeding, general care) at typical cemetery sites that might be eligible for the program are estimated to range from about $300 to $900 per cemetery per year, with a mid-point cost estimate of $600 per year. This is an estimated cost of care for cemeteries or cemetery sections with about 50 to 100 burials. Therefore, it of course covers many gravesites for individuals buried near Revolutionary War veterans that were not veterans, or not veterans of that war. The cost figure is relevant, nonetheless, because in most instances, either care is provided throughout a cemetery (or cemetery section), or it is not provided at all. The typical maintenance program at the cemeteries does not provide care to just a few gravesites, while neglecting the other gravesites in the same general vicinity.

The program recommended in this report would provide payments or tax incentives on a per-cemetery basis to help meet the routine maintenance needs at the cemeteries. The State may wish to consider a baseline contribution or tax credit to caretakers of $50 toward the provision of routine maintenance care at each cemetery in the program, with an additional $5 to $10 per gravesite marker at sites with more than five Revolutionary War veteran burials. This minimum contribution or tax credit would provide a meaningful contribution toward the cost of routine maintenance care at cemeteries or cemetery sections with about 50 to 100 burials (for most cemeteries, probably between five and 16 percent of the care costs, and more than full coverage of the literal "share" of the cost borne by the Revolutionary War veteran gravesites). The estimated State cost in disbursements, or tax credits given, to provide for this action ranges from $17,050 to $44,550 annually, with a single best estimate of $28,300 annually.

There is reason for doubt, however, as to whether a $50 minimum contribution per cemetery would be sufficient to motivate individuals or organizations to assume care-taking responsibility for cemeteries with Revolutionary War veteran graves that are currently neglected. Also, the previous discussion and costs do not address extraordinary maintenance costs that may be entailed for activities such as tree removal or the repair of damaged markers. Therefore, funding options are provided at the end of the chapter that range from providing a fairly minimal to a fairly comprehensive program for assisting with the preservation of Revolutionary War veteran gravesites.

Administrative resources could be given in the early stages of the program (the first two to five years) to the Department of Historic Resources (DHR) to provide for initial development and implementation of the program, with an eventual goal of contracting the program out to an interested statewide organization, such as the Virginia Society Sons of the American Revolution (VASSAR) or the Virginia Daughters of the American Revolution (VADAR). The costs of whatever program option is selected, as well as the success of the program, will ultimately depend in large measure on the degree of interest that exists at the grass-roots level (by churches, DAR and SAR chapters, historical societies, and others) to participate in the program and to oversee or provide consistent maintenance care at these cemetery sites.

NATURE OF STATE PROGRAM DEPENDS ON OBJECTIVES PURSUED

The features and costs of a State program to promote the preservation of Revolutionary War veteran gravesites depend to a large extent upon what objectives are to be pursued through the program. There are some low-level objectives that can be met with a simple and inexpensive program. For example, the State could make minimal contributions or extend small tax credits to existing caretakers of sites, to demonstrate a basic supportiveness and interest in these efforts at a very low cost. On the other hand, if the State wishes to attract new caretakers to currently neglected sites, then a higher level of State commitment may be required.

This section of the chapter discusses seven potential objectives that could be addressed by the program. These objectives are not all mutually exclusive, and there may be other objectives that could be considered by policy-makers. However, the seven objectives identified and discussed here include:

- preserve information about the burials for future generations,
- offer a program of care similar to the State's other graves program,
- provide some support to existing caretakers of the sites,
- provide support to attract custodial care at neglected sites,
- provide support to help with extraordinary preservation needs,
- identify veteran grave sites that are not currently evident,
- a step in promoting care of old and small cemeteries in Virginia.

Preserve Information About the Burials for Future Generations

There are two aspects of Revolutionary War veteran gravesites that could be preserved. The first is the physical aspect – the actual cemetery, with all the marked and unmarked graves, and the actual tombstone or marker honoring the veteran(s) where present. Clearly the mandates for this review contemplated physical preservation of the gravesites, and most of the objectives discussed in this chapter relate to physical preservation issues.

However, the second aspect is the historical and genealogical information provided by the tombstone of the Revolutionary War veteran (and potentially by surrounding tombstones). Information contained in cemeteries are of value to historians, genealogists, and to present and future generations that are descended from or interested in the families. The objective of preserving knowledge about the cemeteries and tombstones can be served, to some degree, without preserving the physical aspect. Over the years, many individuals have recorded data from various cemeteries in Virginia to help preserve that information. A State program could include, as one component, an effort to document and publish information about all Revolutionary War veteran sites that can be found. Documentation could include directions and latitude and longitude data about where the site is located, a recording of data from gravestones, and photographs of the gravesites. A start in this direction is provided in this report (see Appendix D for written information collected from site visits for this study).

This objective is not intended to supersede objectives oriented to provide the preservation of the physical sites. Rather, it could be pursued as complementary to such an effort. It could serve as an insurance mechanism so that all knowledge of certain sites is not lost in the event that forces not completely within the control of a physical preservation program lead to damage or destruction at some of the sites (for example, wanton vandalism, or extreme damage by forces of nature).

Offer a Program of Routine Maintenance Care that Is Similar to the State's Existing Veteran Graves Program

The State currently has a program that provides assistance for the maintenance and care of the gravesites of some veterans (Confederate veterans). Item 424 C of the 2000 Appropriation Act provides $59,690 from the general fund in FY 2001 and in FY 2001 to the United Daughters of the Confederacy (the UDC) for the purposes prescribed in §10.1-2211. The UDC disburses the funds to churches and organizations maintaining the grave sites. In addition, Item 571 (which provides State grants to non-State entities) provides $9,000 for a special project at one of the Confederate cemeteries.

Given that the State has a program to provide assistance to maintain these veteran gravesites, the argument can be made that perhaps it ought to have a program that helps to preserve the even older graves of veterans who fought to establish America's independence. An objective for the Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program might be to provide for at least a similar level of routine maintenance care as the State's already-existing program provides.

From 1980 to 1989, the State provided a minimum of a $50 payment per year to each organization (most frequently, churches and United Daughters of the Confederacy chapters) that was authorized in the Code of Virginia to receive disbursements for the care of Confederate veteran graves. The amount of the payment to be provided to each organization was enumerated in the Code, and ranged from the $50 minimum to as much as $3,000. The majority of payments made were in the range of $50 to $100.

At the 1989 General Assembly Session, the statute was changed to provide for an allocation based on "the rate of $5 or the average actual cost of routine maintenance, whichever is greater, for each grave, monument or marker" in the organization's care. The payment amounts shown in the Code were divided by five. This provided a number of "grave units" to use in the statute that would maintain the same total amounts of payment.

However, since the payment amounts were not built in the first place based upon the assumption of five dollars per grave, the numbers contained in the Code did not (and still do not) reflect the actual number of graves being maintained. Thus, it needs to be understood that the five dollar per grave written in statute is at best a very rough guide as to the amount that is provided per grave to each organization.

A review of information submitted by churches and UDC chapters to the UDC program administrator indicates that the funding that is received is typically used in conjunction with funds from several other sources to provide mowing and other routine maintenance at cemeteries that have Confederate veteran burials. Many of these churches and chapters report receiving donations for cemetery care from a number of sources, oftentimes including descendants of the people buried in the cemeteries.

Based on estimates derived from UDC records, the average payment received by organizations in the program in FY 1999 was around $370. However, this average is skewed by the approximately 21 percent of the organizations which received $500 or more dollars. About 45 percent of the organizations received between $50 and $100. Also, about six percent of the organizations actually were paid less than $50, based on reductions made by the UDC program administrator. Some sites with a limited number of documented burials or graves maintained were cut below $50 to gain funds to pay more to some other sites.

If the State wishes to establish a Revolutionary War veteran graves program that is similar to the Confederate graves program, a decision would need to be made as to how to handle the $50 minimum payment issue. On the one hand, this approach has been implicitly reflected in the statutory policy for the Confederate graves program for many years. The approach was maintained at least in statute when all Code amounts, which began at $50, were divided by five (without any adjustments) in the 1989 conversion to “five-dollar-equivalent” grave units. On the other hand, the UDC has begun to depart from the $50 minimum approach in its administration of the program. It was not an express requirement in the statute that was amended in 1989, and it is not an express requirement in the statute today.

Provide Some Support to Existing Caretakers of Sites with Revolutionary War Graves

Some degree of maintenance care was being provided at most of the cemeteries visited by JLARC staff during the review. While some family cemeteries were overgrown, and many months if not years may have elapsed since any maintenance had been conducted, other cemeteries were well-maintained. None of the church cemeteries visited, for example, were failing to mow grass at the cemeteries. Further, at some of the sites visited, individuals who had recently purchased a property with one of these old cemeteries appeared to be assuming a caretaker role, as evidenced by the condition of the cemetery at the time of the visit.

One of the objectives of a State program might be to provide some assistance to such organizations and private individuals. Currently, without reward or State assistance, these organizations and individuals are responsibly providing care to old cemeteries that has the indirect consequence of ensuring that Revolutionary War veteran gravesites are preserved, to the potential historical benefit of all Virginians.

Provide Support to Attract Custodial Care at Neglected Sites

Support provided by the State to current caretakers of cemeteries with Revolutionary War veterans could be in the form of a token amount, or it could be a more generous contribution. The primary purpose of the support would be to provide assistance on behalf of existing activity and encourage the continuance of that activity.

However, the State could also pursue a goal of seeking to attract custodial care at sites that are currently neglected. There are two different scenarios under which the State could seek to have an impact through the program. One scenario is where the owner of a property with one of the cemeteries has the right to provide for maintenance at the cemetery, but has chosen to neglect it. The second scenario is one where there may be no active or resident landowner of the property with the cemetery, and any maintenance at the cemetery would depend on the decision of a local organization or individual to take on the responsibility of providing maintenance care at the cemetery. Under either of these scenarios, it appears unlikely that a token State payment would have any influence on the decision to assume this responsibility. Larger contributions toward the purpose by the State or others might serve as an inducement, but may raise equity concerns vis-à-vis payments provided to those already caring for a cemetery site.

Attempt to Find and Identify Stones that Are Not Currently Evident

At one of the cemeteries visited during this review, grave stones for descendants of the reported veterans were found, and many of these descendants were buried during the 1800s. Grave stones for the two Revolutionary War veterans reported were not found, and it is probably because none currently exist at the cemetery. However, this conclusion could not be reached with absolute certainty because the cemetery was so overgrown with trees and vegetation that the potential existed to miss the stones.

There are other cemeteries across the State that are overgrown, and there is some uncertainty at the sites as to what grave markers may be present. A Revolutionary War gravesite program could provide some funds, or encourage volunteer activity, to provide a thorough cleaning of overgrown cemeteries that may have one or more Revolutionary War veterans buried there. The purpose of the cleaning would be first, to determine what stones are present at the site, and secondarily, to prepare the site for routine maintenance activities into the future, if a caretaker is available. In pursuing this objective, it would need to be understood that at some proportion of the overgrown sites (and perhaps even at most of the sites cleaned up), no identifiable gravesites for the reported Revolutionary War veterans may be found.

Assist with Extraordinary Maintenance Costs

For the State's existing veteran gravesite program, §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia provides that in addition to the funding available for ordinary maintenance, organizations may apply to the Director of the Department of Historic Resources for "grants to perform extraordinary maintenance, renovation, repair or reconstruction" of Confederate cemeteries and graves. The section also provides that "these grants shall be made from any appropriation made available by the General Assembly for such purpose."

In practice, not much funding has been sought or provided for extraordinary maintenance. In FY 2001, for example, the only allocation of grant funds to a cemetery that is pursuant to the statute is $9,000 that has been made available to replace a fence around one of the cemeteries.

However, a complete cemetery maintenance plan needs to include provisions for extraordinary maintenance. Examples of extraordinary maintenance that may be required include: in-filling the top of a stone to protect the bedding planes of the stone, repairing broken tombstones, resetting a toppled granite stone or a leaning obelisk, removal of a tree that threatens gravestones or visitor safety, or repair or replacement of fencing. Costs for these activities can range from as little as about $200 per repair to as much as several thousand dollars.

A Possible Step in the Direction of Promoting Greater Care of Various Graves at Old and Historically Significant Cemeteries

In its comments on the interim report for this JLARC review, the Department of Historic Resources stated that:

Public concerns about the protection, care, and restoration of historic gravesites are among the issues and requests for help and funding brought most frequently to this Department. As a society, we value cemeteries and gravesites as a mark of respect for those who have gone before, and especially for those who have served their community, their state and their nation. At the same time, we are a society in motion valuing change. The demands of the present often compete with respect for the memorials to our dead...

Creating a new or expanded cemetery grant program that considers the graves of categories of people without dealing with the broad issue of abandoned and neglected cemeteries and graves raises concerns... [and] necessarily raises questions of the Commonwealth's commitment to care for graves of other groups beyond the category Revolutionary War veterans.

The mandates for this review specifically requested information and recommendations regarding preservation issues for Revolutionary War veteran gravesites. Consistent with the mandates, the scope of this review focuses upon this subset of cemetery sites and markers. However, during site visits for the review, other interesting old markers were observed, and markers were observed for other veterans from the pre-Civil War period, including veterans of the French and Indian Wars and the War of 1812 that was fought to preserve American independence (see Exhibit 9).

DHR raises a valid point that there are other cemeteries and graves in Virginia that are of historic interest and may be abandoned and neglected. Nonetheless, a maintenance program for Revolutionary War veteran grave sites could be considered a valued objective in and of itself, or it could potentially be established as a step in the direction of an expanded commitment to the preservation of old cemeteries of historic interest or abandoned cemeteries in general.

ROUTINE MAINTENANCE COSTS AT TYPICAL ELIGIBLE CEMETERIES ESTIMATED AT $600 PER YEAR, OR $336,000 STATEWIDE

Most of the Revolutionary War soldier burial sites that have been reported for the JLARC staff compiled list are buried in family cemeteries. Specifically, 616 of the sites (69 percent) have been classified as family cemeteries. In addition, a portion of the 112 sites that have been classified in the miscellaneous category due to a lack of information may also actually be family cemetery burials.

Exhibit 9

Based on observations during the site visits, it appears that the family cemeteries in which these soldiers are buried often consist of more than one family and their descendents, but still the total number of burials tends to be relatively small. For example, cemeteries with about 50 to 100 burials appeared to be typical. Of course, some Revolutionary War soldier burial sites happen to consist of only one or two visible markers, while some soldiers are buried in very large cemeteries such as Mount Hebron in the City of Winchester. However, even in the larger cemeteries, it appears there often is an older “section” of the cemetery, again with perhaps 100 or so gravesites, where burials from the late 1700s and early 1800s, including the Revolutionary War soldier, are concentrated.

To estimate the costs of providing ordinary maintenance at the cemeteries with Revolutionary War soldiers, JLARC staff estimated the costs based on the typical costs that might be associated with maintaining a cemetery (or cemetery section) with about 50 to 100 graves. Exhibit 10 provides two examples of the estimated costs of routine maintenance care at family cemeteries with Revolutionary War veteran burials. It appears that the typical range for ordinary maintenance programs for such sites consists of about 12 to 18 mowings per year at a cost of about $25 to $50 per mowing. Based on this information, the estimated prevailing costs for ordinary maintenance at these cemetery sites ranges from about $300 to $900 per year, with a “best estimate” of the typical cost at $600.

The best estimate of the typical cost times the best estimate of the number of cemeteries (560) produces a best cost estimate statewide of $336,000. The range in cost may be from about $100,000 to about $800,000. The low end of the range is based on multiplying the minimum typical cost ($300) times the low estimate for the number of eligible cemeteries (335). The upper end of the range is based on multiplying the maximum typical cost ($900) times the high estimate for the number of eligible cemeteries (885).

THE STATE MAY WISH TO CONSIDER A PROGRAM WITH BASELINE PAYMENTS OR TAX CREDITS OF $50 PER ELIGIBLE CEMETERY

In considering a proposal for how the Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program might work, it is useful to consider precedents that stem from the State's existing veteran gravesite program. There may be some reasons why it might be reasonable or appropriate for the Revolutionary War veteran burial program to differ from the existing program in some respects. However, the State's current program is a good starting point for considering implementation issues.

As discussed earlier, there is precedent from the State's Confederate gravesite program to provide payments under two guiding principles. One principle, established explicitly in statute since 1989, is to provide the "rate of five dollars or the average actual cost of routine maintenance, whichever is greater, for each grave, monument, or marker" in care. DHR assessments of the actual costs of care (the last assessment was done in 1996) have not led to any changes in the five dollar per grave rate.

Another principle has been an implicit floor of $50 per cemetery or organization taking care of a site or sites. This floor guided the statutory dollar amounts that were printed in the Code of Virginia until 1989. The floor was in effect continued by giving credit for ten grave units to the churches and organizations that were maintaining cemeteries with a fifty-dollar reimbursement when the Code listing was redone.

If applied to the Revolutionary War gravesite program, a five dollar per-grave reimbursement, without a floor per cemetery, would be very inexpensive. The maximum likely cost for such a program, based on an upper-estimate of 1,480 graves, would be $7,400 and it would be $3,525 for the best estimate of 705 eligible graves.

While inexpensive, however, this level of reimbursement also would likely bring little benefit in the way of enhanced care of each veteran gravesite. There are two reasons this is the case. First, cemetery caretakers either mow and perform ordinary maintenance activities for a cemetery (or cemetery section), or they neglect it. They do not just mow around selected stones, and it does not appear reasonable for the program to assume that they should do otherwise.

Second, across Virginia, only 15 of the 889 cemeteries with Revolutionary War veteran burials reported for this study (excluding the Colonial National Historical Park) were reported to have ten or more Revolutionary War veteran burials. Only 30 cemeteries were reported to have five or more Revolutionary War burials. This means that a five-dollar per grave Revolutionary War veteran program, without a minimum floor, would in most cases provide less than $25 per cemetery. Of the 12 to 18 mowings that might be desirable per year at each cemetery, this amount would not be sufficient to purchase the price of one complete mowing at a typical cemetery. The question could be reasonably raised by a potential recipient caretaker of a cemetery with a single Revolutionary War veteran grave as to whether a five dollar payment or tax credit is even worth the time required to seek it. Costs to administer the program could be disproportionate to the benefits as well.

Due to these considerations, it is recommended that the State establish the program with a baseline reimbursement or tax credit amount of $50 per eligible cemetery. The estimated State cost in disbursements, or tax credits given, to provide for this action ranges from $16,750 to $44,500 annually, with a single best estimate of $28,000.

In conclusion, a $50 dollar payment per cemetery would not be unduly expensive, and it is an amount that could be meaningful to the care of the Revolutionary War veteran gravesite. For example, at a cemetery with currently deficient mowing practices, it could provide for the cost of an additional one to two mowings, or defray the costs of one to two mowings at a site where appropriate care is already being provided. It could alternatively be used to help assist with the cost of purchasing a durable plaque with the veteran's name to mark the gravestones that are fading, so the identity of the veteran's stone continues to be known. An all-weather, five by eight inch plaque like those used by DAR (for an example, see middle photograph, Exhibit 5 in Chapter II) costs about $125.

Recommendation (1).* The General Assembly may wish to consider establishing a State program to assist with routine maintenance costs, or the purchase of durable plaques, at cemeteries with at least one documented Revolutionary War veteran burial. The General Assembly may wish to establish a $50 minimum or baseline reimbursement or tax credit amount per eligible cemetery as a major component of the program.

ADDITIONAL GRANTS OR TAX CREDITS WOULD BE REQUIRED TO PURSUE OBJECTIVES BEYOND ON-GOING, ROUTINE MAINTENANCE

A basic State program providing $50 per cemetery, with a payment of five additional dollars per grave for sites with more than ten Revolutionary War veteran burials, would help to meet two of the seven potential objectives identified earlier in the chapter. First, at least for routine maintenance, it would place the Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program on roughly equal footing with the State's existing gravesite program. Second, it would provide some support to existing caretakers of the sites.

However, there are other potential objectives that this basic program does not address. Additional grants or tax credits might be required if the State wishes to: attract custodial care at neglected sites; provide support for extraordinary maintenance needs; identify veteran graves that are not currently evident; or expand coverage to additional old cemeteries. A problem, however, is that there is less of an empirical basis for defining cost levels to achieve these objectives than there is for ordinary maintenance. Funding levels provided at the initiation of a program that seeks to address any of these potential objectives could be adjusted over time, however, as experience with the grants or tax credits is obtained.

Difficulties in Identifying Grant or Tax Credit Costs for Certain Objectives Beyond Routine Maintenance

Referring to Revolutionary War veteran burial sites, HJR 530 requests that the JLARC study “recommend a program to restore and preserve all such sites” [emphasis added]. To address the task of restoration and preservation as comprehensively as suggested in the mandate means that the program must be responsive to issues other than assisting active caretakers facing routine maintenance costs. A program providing for the restoration and preservation of all sites needs to attract maintenance care to currently neglected sites. The program also needs to address extraordinary maintenance needs as they arise over time.

To pursue these other objectives, it is feasible to suggest a general range for grants or tax credits that could be used in budgeting for early program implementation. However, it is clear that what figure is used will likely need to be adjusted as experience with the program builds over time. There are some key deficiencies in the availability of information from which to make a strong empirical estimate of the costs.

Problems in Identifying Grant or Tax Credit Costs for Attracting Care to Neglected Sites. There are a variety of reasons why many cemeteries do not continue to receive maintenance care. As family members move away from an area, over the years, the existence of a cemetery may be forgotten. Properties with cemeteries may become abandoned, with no property owner to potentially assume the responsibility for care. Or, new property owners may give a very low or no priority to cemetery care.

Of the 15 reported family cemeteries that were part of the subset for detailed review, two were found to be not receiving on-going care at all, and a third was not receiving on-going care in the section where the oldest graves were present. If this rate of neglect (20 percent) is applied to the total number of reported individual or family sites, and to half of the miscellaneous category sites, then an estimated 135 discoverable non-public sites with Revolutionary War veteran burials may not be actively receiving care.

However, there are two problems with moving from this estimate of the number of neglected sites to estimating costs and appropriate funding levels for addressing the issue. The first problem is that the level of State incentives, in the form of grants or tax incentives, that would be necessary to attract an initial clean-up and restoration effort for the cemetery is unclear. With increased public education and awareness, and if permission can be obtained to perform the work, in some instances individuals and/or organizations have been motivated to undertake voluntary clean-up efforts. Depending on factors such as the condition of the cemetery and the condition and weight of the tombstones that need attention, it may be feasible for volunteer groups to accomplish much of the work at virtually no cost. On the other hand, initial clean-ups of cemeteries can require the use of heavy equipment or professional assistance and cost $2,000 or more. At present, it is not possible to determine: (1) how many of the 135 or so sites might be attended to by volunteers if public education and awareness of the sites locally were increased, or (2) the costs entailed per site for the work that cannot be appropriately accomplished by volunteers.

However, for initial budgeting purposes, an assumption can be made that the typical cost may be around the mid-point between no cost (where complete clean-up by volunteers is feasible) and a $2,000 cost (where substantial assistance is required). If the State fully paid this $1,000 cost over a five-year period across 135 sites, the cost would be $27,000 per year. It needs to be recognized, however, that a few sites could be particularly expensive to restore and may require more than a typical cost level.

The second problem is addressing the grants or tax credits that may be required to attract on-going routine maintenance to neglected sites. It has already been discussed that a cemetery with 50 to 100 graves may typically cost between $300 and $900 for routine maintenance care. It seems unlikely that a $50 baseline payment per cemetery would be sufficient to attract on-going maintenance care at previously-neglected cemeteries unless there is a party that already believes that it can raise the required funds from donations and other sources, and therefore is already favorably disposed to assuming this responsibility without the possibility of State aid.

Thus, the problem is that there is a lack of available information as to the grant or tax credit level that would be necessary to motivate a potentially interested party to provide the care. The level would likely vary across different potential caretakers, based on their degree of interest in the cemetery and their existing financial resources.

Hypothetically, if a grant or tax credit covering one-third to one-half of the costs were sufficient for this purpose, then this cost share extended to 135 sites where ordinary maintenance costs average $600 per year would necessitate grants or tax credits totaling between $27,000 and $40,500. It is unlikely as a matter of policy, however, that a high level of assistance should be provided at all currently-neglected sites. There are equity concerns raised in providing a much higher level of payment at some sites than is available to other participants in the program who have responsibly provided care over the years. A higher level of payment should only be afforded in those instances in which there is no identifiable party with an existing obligation to provide care at the cemetery, and where the grant or tax incentive appears to be the only feasible approach to achieving the restoration and on-going care of the cemetery.

Problems in Identifying Grant or Tax Credit Costs for Extraordinary Maintenance. There are some reasons that extraordinary maintenance costs, including stone repairs, at the cemeteries of Revolutionary War veterans, may not be as great as one might originally think. Based on site visit observations, most of the grave markers of Revolutionary War veterans appeared to have structural integrity and appeared to be at least in fair condition, especially given the age of some of the stones. (This observation, as well as other observations in the report about the condition of cemeteries and grave stones, is made with the caveat that it reflects a lay person's observation, and not the judgement of a cemetery preservation professional). Also, most of the stones observed, and the fences or walls around the stones, were not threatened by trees to such an extent that tree removal appeared to be necessary.

Further, professionals in the field of cemetery and tombstone preservation generally recommend a cautious approach to restoration activity. One of the maxims of these professionals is "do no harm." Oftentimes, the best course of action is to leave stones alone, because repair options are unlikely to help much, and may in fact lead to greater damage. There are many examples in the literature of well-intended but ultimately counterproductive attempts to restore or protect grave stones. Also, the literature debunks the notion that the purpose of the restoration should be to make stones "look like new." Many individuals, in an attempt to clean stones, have harmed the original character of the stone. Part of what makes the stone interesting is the physical reflection of its age.

The best strategy to minimize extraordinary maintenance costs is to prevent major problems from occurring, by actions such as mowing, securing the cemetery and tombstones to the extent possible from threats of vandalism, and monitoring the condition of stones and the growth of trees. As has been stated in the literature, "good maintenance is the basic preservation procedure" [A Graveyard Preservation Primer, Lynette Strangstad, 1995]. It appears appropriate for the core of the State's program to help organizations or concerned citizens provide routine maintenance at the cemeteries. This has been the core of the Confederate veteran program.

However, damage inflicted by the elements, animals, or other factors cannot always be anticipated. A treasurer for a cemetery contacted during this review, for example, reported that a few years ago, the cemetery fence was damaged when a car ran into it. Over time, some extraordinary maintenance needs are inevitable, and responsible caretakers of the cemeteries cannot ignore them.

The problem in budgeting for these needs is the unpredictability of the need from year to year and the high expense that can be involved when these needs arise. Table 8 summarizes some of the typical costs that can be involved in extraordinary maintenance activities, such as tombstone or monument repairs that are substantial and the removal of trees. Particular situations, however, may present even higher costs. For example, a church cemetery participating in the Confederate gravesite program had to remove a 70-foot tall magnolia tree weakened during a heavy wind in FY 1997. The collapse of the tree would have damaged many monuments. According to a church official, $7,000 was spent to "preclude this unhappy situation."

It appears doubtful that the existing State gravesite program responds adequately to extraordinary maintenance needs, given the few requests that are made and that are funded. Undoubtedly, repairs are being made that are not funded through that program.

Source: JLARC staff notes from presentation comments and responses to questions about typical costs by the Director of the Chicora Foundation, Inc. at an April 2000 workshop at Salem College entitled "Cemetery Preservation: Making Good Choices."

During the site visits to Revolutionary War veteran gravesites, several stones, while in reasonable current condition, showed evidence of prior repairs. It was not feasible to obtain maintenance repair histories for a substantial number of cemeteries to help project these costs. Further, sections of cemetery preservation literature on funding that were reviewed were not helpful with regard to budgeting principles for these needs.

Finance officers or superintendents of a few cemeteries reported that at a cemetery with relatively high numbers of Revolutionary War veteran burials, around two or three percent of the total budget may be typically set aside for repair costs. However, special attention may be given when specific problems arise or when a decision is made to focus on the needs of a particular section of the cemetery. At smaller cemeteries, for several years in a row, nothing may be done, except for routine care such as mowing. Then, some special need may arise costing hundreds or thousands of dollars.

A Kentucky Cemetery Preservation Program Provides Some Funds for Initial Maintenance and Preservation Activities for "Pioneers"

During this review, JLARC staff contacted 20 states, and received information from contacts at 15 of these states about cemetery preservation programs and funding issues. The states that were contacted were southern and northeastern states, ranging from Mississippi to Maine. None of the states contacted had a cemetery preservation program that focused on Revolutionary War veteran gravesites per se. In fact, with the exception of federal fund for cemeteries with designations on the National Register of historical sites, most states do not provide funding for the preservation of historic graveyards or gravesites, but rather have cemetery laws that seek to prevent desecration of cemeteries, as well as encroachment by developers. These laws reportedly have had varying degrees of effectiveness in achieving their intended purpose. Thus, if Virginia does establish a program, it may be fairly unique.

However, the State of Kentucky does have a cemetery preservation program for old cemeteries. The program was originally designed for the gravesites of deceased governors, but within the last several years it has been expanded to include governor's spouses, deceased U.S. Vice-Presidents, and "Kentucky pioneers." Kentucky pioneers are defined to include people who were living in Kentucky by 1800, or who are buried in cemeteries that were in place for people who died before 1850.

Kentucky allocates $40,000 each year for its cemetery preservation program. Funding is $22,500 for the Vice-Presidents and Governor's program, $12,500 for the pioneer program, and $5,000 for education programs. With the funding for education activities, the program has sponsored training (annual seminars) for the public regarding cemetery preservation work. For the pioneer program, decisions on the projects to fund are based solely on the application pool. Funds are granted to local community or governmental organizations who hold and spend the funds, with oversight from the State. A ten-person State advisory committee determines who receives the grants and how the money is spent. Answering cemetery preservation questions from the public and other tasks required for the cemetery program, are handled by three staff (the program is a portion of each of their workload) with part-time person during the summer months. These staff are in the community services branch of the Kentucky Historical Society, a state agency.

With the sites of governors and vice-presidents, there is no limit on the amount of funds that can be awarded and no matching requirement. For pioneer cemeteries, there is a cost limit of $2,000 per project, regardless of whether it is a gravesite or cemetery-wide project. A 50-50 match is required from the grant recipient, and this match may be in-kind. According to the State administrator for the program, $2,000 generally covers supplies and materials and can cover the cost of using a backhoe to lift fallen monument pieces. Funding under the pioneer program can only be used for initial maintenance and preservation efforts, not an on-going project. The pioneer program encourages the use of locally-trained people who might donate their services.

Kentucky encountered some problems in the early implementation of the programs, but expects the process to work more smoothly as additional experience is gained. An initial problem was that few people had knowledge of proper and effective preservation techniques, so much education was necessary. Also, Kentucky ran into a problem with a monument company that used improper techniques. The biggest problem reported, however, has been with the adequacy of the $40,000 per year that has been available for funding purposes. That is in part because the types of projects that are submitted and authorized are not inexpensive.

Conclusions

The Kentucky program illustrates an approach that has been taken to meeting cemetery preservation needs that are outside of the realm of on-going ordinary maintenance. That program focuses on the initial maintenance and preservation of sites. Due to the uncertainties associated with the level of annual needs in Virginia (even if focused on just the estimated 580 sites with Revolutionary War veterans), and the potentially high cost that may be involved, the matter of State support for the objectives discussed in this section of the report appears best addressed initially by making a policy choice as to a viable level of expenditures (or credits). Then, over time, the level of expenditures or tax credits can be adjusted based on dollar availability and the amount of annual funding that appears necessary to meet critical needs, based on the applications for support that are received by the program. The State may wish to consider allocating between $10,000 and $40,000 per year for purposes such as initially cleaning gravesites, attracting ordinary maintenance care to neglected gravesites, and extraordinary maintenance. The focus of the use of these funds could gradually shift over time from initial clean-up projects to the other two purposes stated.

To obtain maximum benefits from any funding provided, the State may wish to require a match for this funding. A 50-50 match with the grant recipient, as in Kentucky, would be one approach. The State could also consider a 50-25-25 match, with the recipient and the local government within whose jurisdiction the cemetery is contained being asked to combine funding to provide the 50 percent match. This issue is discussed further in the next section of the chapter on the role of public and private entities in the preservation program.

Recommendation (2).* In addition to providing a baseline payment or tax credit for routine maintenance, the General Assembly may wish to consider providing between $10,000 and $40,000 per year to pay for a State share of costs for initial clean-up of neglected cemeteries, the attraction and sustenance of routine maintenance care at neglected sites, and extraordinary maintenance needs. The General Assembly may also wish to require that the entity administering the program on behalf of the State develop and publish criteria or guidelines for use in setting priorities where the State funding requested for these purposes exceeds available funds.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE ENTITIES WILL NEED TO ASSUME A ROLE IN ENSURING SITE RESTORATION AND PRESERVATION

In developing recommendations for a program of site restoration and preservation, HJR 530 requires that this study address “the role of public and private entities.” Also, SJR 345 requires that the study address whether associations requesting funds should be required to provide matching funds or services, and what the optimal percentage should be for the match.

This section of the report addresses three roles that will need to be performed if a program is to be established. First, there is the administration of the program. The report recommends that the Department of Historic Resources be provided the resources that are necessary to establish, develop, and administer the program in the short-term (two to five years). In the longer-term, program administration could be contracted out, as is done with the Confederate gravesite program.

Second, there is the role of providing funds for the program. As stated earlier, the report recommends a baseline or minimum State contribution of $50 per eligible cemetery, with an additional amount of five to ten dollars per grave above the floor. This funding would most likely be used for ordinary maintenance (although use of the funds for appropriate special projects related to the preservation and restoration of Revolutionary War veteran gravesites would not be explicitly prohibited). The balance of the ordinary maintenance costs would be borne by the churches or associations providing care at the cemetery. For some special costs, such as initial clean-up of abandoned cemeteries or extraordinary maintenance, consideration should be given to: (1) using State funds to pay for half of approved costs (up to a project ceiling), and (2) using a combination of funds raised by recipient associations and funds from the local government to pay for the remaining half.

Third, there is the role of actually providing maintenance at the sites. The State should ensure the development of some basic rules for the use of the State funds. It should also develop and provide some basic materials to potential recipients of funds about the issues involved with providing cemetery maintenance care. However, the primary decision-makers about the provision of care, within the parameters set by current State and local law and approved program parameters, will be the recipient organizations.

Administration of the Program Could Be Handled Initially by DHR, and then Contracted Out

If a program is to be established, it appears that the Department of Historic Resources should be assigned initial responsibility for establishing and administering the program. DHR is the State historic preservation office. Its mission is to “foster, encourage, and support the stewardship of Virginia’s significant historic, architectural, archaeological, and cultural resources.” DHR administered the Confederate graves program prior to contracting the program to the UDC. Similarly, once the Revolutionary War veteran program has matured, it may be desirable for the State to contract with an interested organization to administer the program into the future, such as the VADAR or the VASSAR.

However, whether any potentially-interested organizations analogous to the UDC (such as the Daughters of the American Revolution or the Sons of the American Revolution) will be interested and step forward to provide this role is currently unclear. Further, if the role of program administration is contracted out, and if special maintenance project fund awards are to be part of the program, then some unique arrangements for determining these awards might need to be worked out to avoid potential bias, or the appearance of bias, in decision-making.

The amount of resources that will be required by DHR to develop and manage the program will depend on the nature of program that is to be implemented. For the option that appears to best meet the objectives of the study mandates, it appears that DHR should be provided an FTE position for use during the first two to five years of the program (prior to when at least part, or even most, of the function would be contracted out). This person could also potentially assume the limited responsibilities that are involved in providing oversight and conducting the biennial survey for the Confederate graves program, and could be available to answer questions from the public about cemetery preservation issues. Quality work in effectively establishing this program, which would require considerably more than the simple disbursement of checks, would be unlikely if the duties for this program were simply assumed into the existing job duties of a staff person.

Recommendations are provided for some of the additional activities that need to be pursued. Awareness of the program will need to be promoted. DHR will need to give substantial attention to the development of a list, with appropriate documentation furnished by applicants, of eligible recipients. It will need to make judgements about the adequacy of furnished documents. Depending on the nature of the program that might be approved, DHR also may need to work carefully with others on the issue of planning and funding selected projects for the clean-up of neglected cemetery sites with potential Revolutionary War veteran burials. Criteria need to be developed to guide the allocation of funds for purposes such as extraordinary maintenance.

In addition, DHR should also pursue creative ways of linking cemeteries that are being maintained with tourism programs. "Early graveyards," as Lynette Strangstad has written, "are outdoor museums," and "each tombstone is an irreplaceable historical document." There are many who appreciate that significance, and might be interested in visiting if aware of the cemetery locations. Also, DHR may be in a position to consider the development of some unique promotional items for the program, such as commissioned posters or other articles, that might both commemorate key Revolutionary War anniversary dates as well as raise additional funds for the program.

Recommendation (3). In the short-term, DHR should be provided with the resources necessary to effectively establish, promote awareness of, and administer a Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program. Once the program has been effectively established, and if an appropriate organization expresses an interest, then DHR could contract with that organization for the continued administration of the program and the disbursement of funds. At that point, the resources assigned to DHR for the purposes of this program could be reduced, but some resources would still be necessary for matters such as contract oversight.

Recommendation (4). As part of the initial application process by recipients for participation in the program, DHR should require documentation of the underlying condition of the cemetery and the Revolutionary War veteran gravestones that are being maintained. A photograph of each gravestone, marker, or monument that will be maintained should be required as part of the documentation of the underlying burial site condition. DHR should also require documentation from applicants (at the time of initial application) of the Revolutionary War veteran status of at least one of the individuals buried at the cemetery. In order to be eligible for reimbursement or a tax credit, the documentation provided should be from a source that DHR staff deems to be reasonably reliable.

Recommendation (5).* DHR should maintain a list of cemetery sites for which appropriate documentation has been received, and continue to add to the list each year as new applications are approved. This responsibility would be transferred to the contractor if the program is contracted out, although DHR should require an updated copy of the list from the contractor every six to 12 months.

Recommendation (6).* As it develops the program, DHR should pursue creative ways of linking cemetery sites maintained through the program with other State and local tourism programs. DHR should also consider whether there are unique promotional items for the program that could be developed that would commemorate key anniversary dates from events of the Revolutionary War that occurred in Virginia, and that would raise additional funds for use in gravesite maintenance activities.

Program Funding Issues Include the Adequacy of the Process to Determine the Per-Grave Payment Amount, and Matching Requirements for State Funds

This report recommends a $50 minimum payment per cemetery for routine maintenance needs. It also recommends the use of a per-grave payment level as determined by DHR for cemeteries with a number of Revolutionary War veteran graves that may justify a payment above $50, and funding for special purposes such as the initial clean-up of cemeteries and extraordinary maintenance. Two funding issues to discuss further, because they relate to how the program are administered, are the adequacy of the process for determining the per-grave cost, and the matching of State funds.

As previously indicated, a five dollar per-grave cost is currently identified in statute for the State's existing graves program. There are some issues regarding this cost amount, however. DHR conducted a survey to examine the actual cost of routine maintenance in a 1996 survey. Per-grave costs from the six cemeteries responding to the survey ranged from less than one dollar to $18.48 per grave. Three of the six cemeteries, however, reported costs that were close to $5.00 per grave ($4.54, $4.73, and $5.03). As a result of the data obtained from that survey, DHR staff concluded that the "the $5.00 per grave basis for determining Confederate memorial fund appropriations appears to remain valid."

However, DHR has not conducted another survey since 1996, so the results are somewhat out of date. The Code of Virginia requires a biennial survey. Further, responses were primarily obtained from larger, public cemeteries. Cost experiences on a per-grave basis may be different for smaller and family cemeteries.

With regard to matches for State funds, §10.1-2211 of the Code provides that “local matching funds shall not be required for grants made pursuant to this section” [the Confederate cemeteries and graves section]. This would apply to routine maintenance and extraordinary maintenance funding.

On the routine maintenance side, for both the Confederate graves program and a proposed Revolutionary War veterans program, while there is no required match, it is clear that there is a locally-made contribution. That is, the caretaker of the cemetery, whether that be a church, local organization, or local government, provides for all of the grass mowing and ordinary maintenance activities that are not funded by the State contribution. It is also clear that under the Confederate graves program, the program has not been very active in the area of extraordinary maintenance.

If the General Assembly decides that the Revolutionary War veteran gravesite program should address special projects such as initial cemetery clean-up costs and extraordinary maintenance costs, it may wish to consider requiring a match requirement for State funds, to be paid in equal shares by the care-taking organization and the local government. The caretaker match would ensure that the caretaker is invested in the outcome of the project, while the local government match would enhance the overall contribution that the caretaker can receive and would give the local government a share of the credit for the preservation effort. If the local government is not willing to participate, caretakers should have the option of paying the local government match amount, so that the project is not “vetoed” by that non-participation.

The caretaker, of course, would be free to use various means to raise funds to provide their match. For example, there may be other organizations, interested citizens, or descendants of those buried in the cemetery who would be willing and able to make donations.

Recommendation (7). The General Assembly may wish to require that DHR, at the time that it conducts a biennial survey process to assess Confederate per-grave maintenance costs as required by §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia, also assess Revolutionary War veteran per-grave costs, for use in funding those cemeteries where the costs calculated on a per-grave basis may exceed fifty dollars per year.

Recommendation (8). If directed by statute to assess per-grave costs for Revolutionary War veteran graves, DHR should include smaller cemeteries in its sample than were in its most recent sample for the Confederate graves program, and it should ensure that the survey process is completed biennially.

Recommendation (9). The General Assembly may wish to direct that DHR staff, with the assistance of the Virginia Municipal League and the Virginia Association of Counties, conduct a survey of local governments. The purpose of the survey would be to assess the willingness of those local governments with Revolutionary War veteran cemeteries in their jurisdiction to voluntarily set aside some funding over time for potential use as a match for State funds to provide for initial cemetery clean-up and extraordinary maintenance needs as they arise in those cemeteries.

Recommendation (10). The General Assembly may wish to consider requiring a match for projects receiving State funds that go beyond the $50 minimum payment level. Such projects might include, but would not necessarily be limited to: the initial clean-up of overgrown sites, the restoration of damaged walls or fences around Revolutionary War veteran gravesites, the removal of trees that may threaten Revolutionary War veteran gravesites or the safety of visitors to the gravesites, or maintenance and restoration of the tombstones or memorials to Revolutionary War veterans. The match requirement would apply to the recipient organization and the locality that has the cemetery within its geographic area of jurisdiction. The recipient organization and the local government could each be expected to match half of the State amount (25 percent each of the approved project cost). However, if the local government is unwilling to provide its share of the match, the recipient organization should still be given the option of receiving the State funds, if it is willing to fully match the State amount (50 percent of the approved project cost).

Recommendation (11). DHR should require that recipients provide information to establish that expenditures on cemetery maintenance equaled or exceeded State funding plus any match requirements during the fiscal year for which the funding was provided.

The State Should Provide Some Education and Guidance Regarding the Provision of Maintenance Care at the Cemeteries

One of the issues that the administrator of the Kentucky cemetery preservation program identified was the issue of the need for education regarding proper and effective preservation techniques. It is possible to damage tombstones with inappropriate approaches to mowing and trimming around stones. However, more complicated issues arise when there is a need to perform tasks such as tree removal or repairing damaged stones. It is important that organizations receiving funds from the program have a general sense of under what circumstances restoration actions are necessary and appropriate, when those actions can be appropriately undertaken by volunteers, and when the work of professionals is required.

Exhibit 11, for example, shows some stones that have been set in a row in concrete at one of the cemeteries that was visited for this review. This practice tends to make mowing easier, and some mistakenly regard this as a good method of securing the stones. Preservation experts, however, regard this as a very bad practice. One of the problems is that many of the stones are likely to break off at the cement line, and may be further damaged as they fall.

Materials are available that discuss good practices and identify inappropriate practices for cemetery maintenance. One of the states contacted for this review, for example, sent JLARC staff a preservation manual called “Grave Concerns” that has been developed and published by its State historic preservation program. DHR should cull information from various sources and develop a guide for those engaged in providing the care at the cemeteries.

Recommendation (12). DHR should develop materials that explain the philosophy of preservation and discuss appropriate practices for cemetery preservation. The materials should include discussions of legal issues regarding access to and the provision of maintenance care at the cemeteries, the circumstances when the employment of a qualified professional is necessary, and some factors to consider in selecting from available professionals.

ILLUSTRATIVE OPTIONS TO ACHIEVE THE POTENTIAL OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Table 9 presents three illustrative options that address, to varying degrees, the potential objectives for a Revolutionary War veteran program, and hence the study mandates. The first option provides for a minimal level of commitment to the program. It would provide a five dollar per-grave grant or tax incentive to cemetery caretakers, as a token level of support for their efforts. Administrative support will be required for this option, to handle activities such as responding to questions about the program, receiving and reviewing applications, handling disbursements or tax credit issues, and keeping records on expenditures. This option is not recommended. However, if it is chosen, because it is a simple and inexpensive program, it may be feasible to contract these responsibilities out fairly quickly.

The second option shown would provide a somewhat higher level of commitment to the program. It assumes a $50 per cemetery payment (at a cost of $28,000 per year), plus an additional payment per grave for those sites with a number of Revolutionary War veteran burials that would place their payment above $50 on a per-grave basis (an additional $300). This option provides a more meaningful level of support, and it is probably sufficient that good documentation from recipients could be expected on matters such the veteran status and the condition of the gravesite without the requirements seeming excessive relative to the benefit received by the applicant.

The third option shown appears to best address the objectives of the study mandates. However, it is also the most expensive. Possible budgeted amounts may total around $100,000 in the first five years, and decline to around $53,500 to $83,500 as initial clean-up projects come to closure and as the heavier demands for program development and program management activities at the state level decrease with the maturation of the program.

Illustrative Funding Options for Revolutionary War Veteran Gravesite Program (Annual Grant or Tax Credit Cost and Program Administration Funding)
Option	Description	Annual Funding in Early Program Stages (2 to 5 Years)	Annual Funding After Program Has Matured	Comments
Five-dollar per grave payment only	Assumes small grants or tax credits.	$2,225 to $7,400 plus administrative expenses	$2,225 to $7,400 plus administrative expenses	Would provide a small level of support to existing cemetery caretakers.
Baseline payment of $50 per cemetery	Assumes $28,500 grant or tax credit costs and 0.5 / 0.25 FTE administrative time.	$55,500	$41,900	Would provide a more meaningful level of support for routine maintenance, and could expect good documentation from recipients.
Baseline payment of $50 per cemetery, plus additional funding of between $10,000 and $40,000 per year for initial clean-up of neglected sites, extraordinary maintenance, and grants or tax incentives to attract routine maintenance care to neglected sites.	Assumes up to $27,000 in the first five years for initial clean-up of neglected sites, although portion of the funds could be used for extraordinary maintenance or to attract routine maintenance to previously neglected sites. Assumes $10,000 to $40,000 per year thereafter for extraordinary maintenance and attracting care to neglected sites. Assumes 1.0 / 0.3 to 0.5 FTE administrative time.	$103,000 to $108,300	$54,600 to $95,500	Option best addresses the objective of HJR 530 to "recommend a program to restore and preserve all [Revolutionary War veteran burial] sites". With proper implementation and support at the local level, should substantially aid in the achievement of the objectives identified at the beginning of the chapter.
Source: Potential funding options developed by JLARC staff. Program development and administrative costs are estimated based on a FTE compensation cost of $54,400 (for example, where 0.3 FTEs are estimated, the administrative cost that is assumed is $16,300).

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 530
1999 Session

Directing the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission, with the assistance of the Department of Historic Resources and in cooperation with the Virginia Association of Counties, the Virginia Municipal League, and other interested associations, to compile a list of sites where Revolutionary War veterans are buried.

WHEREAS, the Commonwealth provides for memorializing and protecting certain graves and cemeteries of veterans of the Confederate Army; and

WHEREAS, such provisions are found in Chapter 22 of Title 10.1 of the Code of Virginia; and

WHEREAS, no similar provision now exists in Virginia law for the restoration and maintenance of the burial grounds and graves of veterans of the Revolutionary War; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission, with the assistance of the Department of Historic Resources and in cooperation with the Virginia Association of Counties, the Virginia Municipal League, the Virginia chapters of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Virginia chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and such other organizations as may register an interest with the Commission, be directed to compile a list of sites where Revolutionary War veterans are buried. The Commission shall also recommend a procedure for adding discovered grave sites to the list, and recommend a program to restore and preserve all such sites, including the role of public and private entities in such site restoration and preservation.

The Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall provide its compiled list of sites where Revolutionary War veterans are buried in an interim report to the Governor and the 2000 Session of the General Assembly, and shall complete its work in time to submit its findings and recommendations to the Governor and the 2001 Session of the General Assembly as provided in the procedures of the Division of Legislative Automated Systems for the processing of legislative documents.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 345
1999 Session

Directing the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission, with the assistance of the Department of Historic Resources and in cooperation with the Virginia Association of Counties, the Virginia Municipal League, and other interested associations, to study issues related to the care and maintenance of the burial grounds and graves of veterans of the War of the American Revolution.

WHEREAS, the Commonwealth provides for the maintenance and upkeep of certain graves and cemeteries of Confederate soldiers and sailors; and

WHEREAS, the provisions regarding the care and maintenance of Confederate graves are to be found in §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia; and

WHEREAS, there is no similar provision for the restoration and maintenance of the burial grounds and graves of veterans of the Revolutionary War who made the great sacrifices necessary to establish the United States of America; and

WHEREAS, the number and locations of graves and burial grounds of Revolutionary War veterans are unknown, as is the cost of providing state funds to maintain such graves; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission, with the assistance of the Department of Historic Resources and in cooperation with the Virginia Association of Counties, the Virginia Municipal League, the Virginia chapters of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Virginia chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and such other organizations as may register an interest with the Commission, be directed to study issues related to the care and maintenance of the burial grounds and graves of veterans of the War of the American Revolution. The study shall consider (i) the number and locations of graves and cemeteries of Revolutionary War veterans in the Commonwealth; (ii) the annual funding that is currently provided pursuant to §10.1-2211 of the Code of Virginia; (iii) the annual funding that may be required to restore and maintain such graves; (iv) whether associations requesting such funds should be required to provide matching funds or services; and (v) the optimal percentage of funds or services that associations may be expected to contribute in the event that state or local governments provide resources for the maintenance of such graves.

All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Commission, upon request.

The Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall complete its work in time to submit its findings and recommendations to the Governor and the 2001 Session of the General Assembly as provided in the procedures of the Division of Legislative Automated Systems for the processing of legislative documents; and be it

RESOLVED FURTHER, That the Clerk of the Senate transmit copies of this resolution to the local chapters of the Virginia Society of the Sons of the American Revolution and the local chapters of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

APPENDIX B-6

SOURCES

The numbers given in the “Source” column of Appendixes B-2 to B-5 correspond to the source numbers that are provided along the left margin of this appendix.

1. National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution 1993 Revolutionary War Graves Register.
2. National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Senate Documents. 1900-1974 in individual volumes. (Washington: Government Printing Office). Also useful in compiling the initial list to check against the DAR records was Patricia Law Hatcher, Abstract of Graves of Revolutionary Patriots. 4 vols. (Dallas: Pioneer Heritage Press, 1987). Hatcher’s work is an abstract of the Senate reports.
3. National Society Daughters of the American Revolution. Records of the Historian General. National Headquarters. Washington, DC.
4. Wardell, Patrick G. Virginia/West Virginia Genealogical Data From Revolutionary War Pension and Bounty Land Warrant Records. 6 vols. (Bowie, Md.: Heritage Books, 1988-1998). In the early stages of this interim review, this source was used to compile a list of individuals who received pensions or bounty land warrants in later years while still living in Virginia. References to this source have been maintained in the source column of the database in a number of instances, but this source did not usually provide a burial location.
5. Mihalyka, Jean Merritt and Faye Downing Wilson. Graven Stones: Inscriptions from Lower Accomack County, Virginia, including Liberty and Parksley Cemeteries. 3rd. ed. (Bowie, Md.: Heritage Books, 1992).
6. Carey, Mary Frances. Tombstone Inscriptions of upper Accomack County, Virginia. (Bowie, Md.: Heritage Books, 1995).
7. Boxley, Mary Frances. Gravestone Inscriptions in Amherst County, Virginia. (Amherst, Va.: [s.n.], 1985).

73. Musselman, Cynthia L. Stafford County Virginia Cemeteries, Vol. 1. 1983.
74. Materials provided by the Yorktown historian of the Colonial National Historical Park, Diane DePew.
75. Virginia Daughters of the American Revolution. Virginia DAR: Special Project: Restoration of Genealogical Records. 1981. Location: F225 V8164
76. NSSAR Revolutionary War Graves Register, 2000 Edition. In the appendix lists for this report, number 76 is mostly used as a source cite to designate entries from the NSSAR list for: (a) veterans buried in Virginia with specific cemetery locations given by the 2000 list that were not given in the NSSAR 1993 publication (see Source 1), or (b) veterans with cemeteries indicated by the 2000 list that were not found in the other sources. In some limited instances, it is given as a supplemental source to other references.
77. Goodrich, Madge. Works Progress Administration of Virginia Historical Inventory: Richmond, Shockoe Cemetery. 1937. Cemetery inscription records, Library of Virginia.
78. Green, Laurie Boush and Virginia Bonney West. Old Churches, Their Cemeteries and Family Graveyards of Princess Anne County, Va. Virginia Beach, 1985.
79. Rockbridge Area Genealogical Society, Rockbridge County, Virginia Heritage Book, 1778-1997, 1997. From a reprint in that source of a listing of Revolutionary War veterans buried in the county that was reported by Mrs. William Moore Peak of Glasgow.
80. McConnell, Catherine S., High on a Windy Hill, 1968.
81. Wise County Historical Society, information provided by Bill Porter in January 2000, including excerpt (page 36) from The Mullins Family in Dickenson County, by Elihu Jasper Sutherland. Source 81 reports William Lawson Sr. and William Lawson (father and son) buried at the Lawson Confederate Memorial Cemetery. Source 22 has a photograph of the marker for William Lawson Sr. (1731-1826), but does not appear to have an entry for a grave or marker for the son (1764-1852) in its compilation of gravesites for that cemetery as well as other Scott County gravesites.

The work Revolutionary Soldiers Buried in Illinois (Mrs. Harriet J. Walker, 1918) reports numerous Virginia veterans buried in that State, including a William Lawson from Scott County who came to Wabash, Illinois and was pensioned and reported buried there.

82. Pittsylvania Historical Society, information provided in January 2000 by Herman Melton, a member of a task force of the local DAR and the historical society which has worked to provide for the restoration of the gravesite of Thomas Carter.
83. Nelson County Historical Society Genealogy Committee, information provided by letter dated December 1998 from Dorothy B. Giles. Included with the letter were several veterans reported by Mrs. Leo Higginbotham to be buried at a cemetery located by Cub Creek Road in Tyro, Virginia.
84. Information on Major Samuel Beverly Scott provided January 2000 by Mr. Cranston Williams, Jr. of Roanoke, Virginia (including maps and a copy of the grave registry filed in May 1988 with the NSSAR).
85. Information on Captain James Dupuy, buried in Nottoway County, as provided January 2000 by Mr. Marshall Smith, Fairfax, Virginia.

110. Charles City County Center for Local History, materials provided by letter dated July 16, 1999 by Sherry B. Tyler, and a supplemental letter of March 23, 2000. In the supplemental letter, Ms. Tyler wrote that only two of the many Charles City County veterans have markers on their graves, Dr. William Rickman and John Tyler. Ms. Tyler reports that the cemetery where Dr. Rickman is buried (“Kittewan”) is well maintained by the present owner of the property. It “is enclosed with a substantial brick wall, which is in good condition. While there is no tombstone, as such, two memorial markers have been placed on the site. One marker is mounted on the wall, while the other is placed outside the enclosure.”

In the cemetery at “Greenway”, where John Tyler is buried, Ms. Tyler reports that his grave “is marked by a large horizontal slab marker, just about ground level, with, if I remember correctly, a brick foundation below. I suspect that the marker was placed there quite some time after his death, as it is very similar to the stone for his son-in-law, who is also buried in the same cemetery and didn’t die until 1832... The present owner of ‘Greenway’ is a family who lives in Germany, but the tenant seems to take some care with the cemetery... The stone is in fine shape, but the brick support could use some repair. The stone reads: ‘The Honorable John Tyler – 28 FEB 1747 – 06 JAN 1813 – Patriot of the Revolution, Speaker of the House of Delegates, Governor of Virginia, Judge of the General Court, and of the U.S. District Court.’” Ms. Tyler questions the entry in the database based on source 76 that a John Tyler Sr. with the same birth and death data as the above John Tyler is buried at a cemetery with the same name in Charlotte County. Ms. Tyler wrote: “John Tyler was the father of the U.S. President John Tyler and you might check the Richmond Enquirer, 12 JAN 1813, page 3 and Richmond Argus, 14 JAN 1813, page 3 for his obituary notices. These give his place of death as his home, ‘Greenway’, in Charles City County. It would be highly unlikely that he would have been carried to Charlotte County for burial, given the fact that he lived in Williamsburg before moving to ‘Greenway’ in Charles City County, where he raised his family and lived the remainder of this life.” On the basis of this information, the second listing of John Tyler Sr. with a Charlotte County burial was deleted.

112. Burgess, Louis A. Virginia Soldiers of 1776, vol. 3. 1929. This work compiled various documents on file in the Virginia Land Office and from other sources. Volume 3 provided “other information” (not burial locations) for the following veterans: John Cropper, Tscharner DeGraffenreidt, David Saunders, and Peter Helphinstine. This volume also provides a 1808 statement by Governor William H. Cabell to the General Assembly of Virginia. The statement in part pertains to John and Anna Maria Lane: "...some old soldiers who had fought our battles in the Revolutionary contest, were received as members of the guard in this city, although from their age and infirmities they were not capable of performing any effective duty. When entirely unable to perform military duty, they were employed as artificers in cleaning the arms. It is not believed that they can be longer employed to advantage even in that way – they have worn out in public service, and now without property or money, and their age and infirmities rendering them unable to procure either, they must be rent forth to beg or starve, unless the humanity of the Legislature shall interfere. Their names are John Hayes, William Hipkins, John Lane – the wife of the latter, Anna Maria Lane is also very infirm, having been disabled by a severe wound, which she received WHILE FIGHTING AS A COMMON SOLDIER (emphasis in original), in one of our Revolutionary battles, from which she never has recovered, and perhaps never will recover..."

113. Greene County Historical Society, information provided by Earl Estes, Jr., Betty Brubach, and Anne Winn. Grave locations for May Burton, Jr. and Lieut. George Thornton are contained in a volume published by the historical society, Greene County Farm Graveyards. The Burton graveyard compilers included Barbara Zorn, Roger E. Powell, Eugene D. Powell, and Earl Estes, Jr. The Thornton graveyard was compiled by Eugene D. Powell.
114. Kathryn C. Beattie provided Smyth County burial locations for several Revolutionary War veterans in a telephone contact on February 7, 2000. Kathryn Beattie also indicated that 71 Revolutionary War soldiers and patriots of Smyth County are honored by a monument erected by the DAR chapter on the grounds of the Smyth County Courthouse.
115. Rodney Taylor sent a facsimile to JLARC staff on February 18, 2000 with information on one veteran buried in Nelson County, and on five veterans buried in Amherst County. The facsimile was received too late to include the information in the appendixes of the interim report. Three of the veterans were reported by Mr. Taylor as buried at St. Mathews ("Rucker's") Episcopal Church in Amherst. Mr. Taylor reported that "The exact location of the graveyard is not known at this time. In a 1934 letter the cemetery was described as being surrounded by a low wall. Some of the wood from the original church was used to make a corn crib which is now in the museum at Sweet Briar College."
116. George Wilkinson of Virginia Beach provided burial locations for several veterans in Dinwiddie County in a telephone contact on June 2, 2000. He also provided the names of two veterans buried at the Smith Family Cemetery at Mount Pleasants at the Fentress Naval Auxiliary Air Facility south of Virginia Beach.

117. William D. Mace provided information on graves at St. John's Episcopal Church in Hampton Virginia via a June 12, 2000 letter to JLARC staff. Mr. Mace was informed about the JLARC study by Senator Hunter Andrews, a former commission member of JLARC and member of St. John's Episcopal Church, who saw an article about the study in the Virginian-Pilot.
118. Mrs. Leonard (Dorothy) Oliver provided information via a letter of June 12, 2000 on the burial site of a Revolutionary War veteran at the Wheeler, Pugh, and Jennings cemetery.
119. Earl Meese, a former member of the Waynesboro Historic Commission, indicated in a telephone call to JLARC staff that a General Porterfield is buried at an old Presbyterian Cemetery that belongs to the City of Waynesboro.

General Note: The numbers reported in this appendix reflected the number of veterans reportedly buried at the cemetery, plus two additional Revolutionary War veteran burials noted through the site visit process (Benjamin Darst at Lexington Cemetery and Robert Pollard at Shockoe Hill Cemetery). The numbers are not adjusted downward based on the site visits. That is, there is no downward adjustment in the event that a particular cemetery was visited and no marker to one or more of the veterans reported was found.

* The source providing information on the St. Mathew's cemetery in Amherst indicates that "the exact location of the graveyard is not known at this time. In a 1934 letter the cemetery was described as being surrounded by a low wall."

 As noted in the report, there are 99 veterans honored at this park by the Yorktown Victory Monument Tablet, and 637 veterans from France who are honored at the French Memorial Cemetery. About 50 of the 637 honored at the French Memorial Cemetery are believed to be buried at the cemetery, but who from the group are among the 50 is not known.

Appendix D:

Data from Site Visits Conducted for the Study

This appendix includes Global Positioning System (GPS) readings and other information obtained on site visits to Revolutionary War veteran graves. The GPS readings were taken with a hand-held GPS. Often, more than one reading was taken at each site.

These GPS readings may be most useful in the future as a tool to help find cemeteries in remote locations where other landmarks are few or have disappeared. Typically, the readings probably lack the degree of precision that would be useful for finding a particular grave within a cemetery. When multiple readings were taken, it was not unusual for the values to vary by one to two seconds at the same location. When multiple readings were taken, the number given in the appendix represents the average or most typical readings obtained.

At a cemetery, finding a particular grave is easiest if the cemetery has been surveyed, and the church or caretakers of the cemetery have the plots identified on a map of the cemetery that is on display for visitors. Among the cemeteries visited during the review, this was a rarity. However, such information was found at St. John Lutheran Church Cemetery in Wythe County and at Fincastle Presbyterian Church Cemetery in Botetourt County.

Locality	Cemetery	Veteran(s)	GPS Reading	Location	Notes
Alexandria	Old Presbyterian Meeting House	Craik, James	38° 48' 06 N 077° 02' 37 W	321 South Fairfax Street	Large stone slab along side of church building near brick fence wall. Inscription reads in part: "In memory of James Craik Chief Physician and Surgeon of the Continental Army". Born Scotland, 1727 and died near Alexandria in 1814.
Alexandria	Old Presbyterian Meeting House	Hunter, William Jr.	38° 48' 07 N 077° 02' 40 W	321 South Fairfax Street	Large stone on cement base that is about six to eight inches high. There are cracks in the ledger that have been in-filled. The tribute was erected by the St. Andrews Society of Alexandria.
Alexandria	Old Presbyterian Meeting House	Tomb of an Unknown Soldier of the Am. Revolution	38° 48' 06 N 077° 02' 38 W	321 South Fairfax Street	Six-legged table tomb enclosed by a fence. Good condition. Erected by the National Society of the Children of the American Revolution and dedicated in 1929. Inscription is easy to read.
Alexandria	Old Presbyterian Meeting House	38 Reported Vet's Did Not Have Distinct Cem Marker			No markers found in the cemetery for 38 of the 43 veterans reported. One of those buried in an unmarked grave is Brig. Lewis Gene Nicholas, who was rebuked by Washington for suggesting that Washington should become king.
Alexandria	Old Presbyterian Meeting House	2 Reported Veterans Served in Other Wars			Robert Allison - a plaque in the church sanctuary indicates he served and died in the War of 1812. Major Carlyle - there is a tomb with a plaque for him in the cemetery; however, his military service was in the French and Indian War.
Amelia	Grub Hill Church	Joseph Eggleston	37° 24' 00 N 077° 58' 12 W	Grub Hill Church Rd (3.2 mi. from 360 on Route 609)	Box tomb, ledger progressively more difficult to read moving from the top to bottom. RE: JLARC Exposure Draft on Revolutionary War Veterans' Gravesites in Virginia

Date: November 6, 2000

We have reviewed the Exposure Draft of the Final Special Report: Revolutionary War Veteran Gravesites in Virginia. The report contains a wealth of information about the location, number and condition of Revolutionary War veterans' graves in Virginia. JLARC has done a commendable job on this study of these important cultural resources. The recommendations in the report are directed not only at addressing maintenance concerns at the graves of Revolutionary War veterans, but also at ensuring that the location of these graves and the story of the contributions of these veterans not be lost.

While the recommendations suggest a wide variety of options to address these issues, they also raise policy questions with potential long-term impacts far broader than the issue of Revolutionary War veterans. The Commission may wish to consider the following broad policy issues:

1. Is the goal at the heart of this study remembering and honoring our Revolutionary War history or simply taking care of the remaining graves?

If remembering that defining history is the overarching goal (as is suggested at several points in the study), there are other additional and very critical means of accomplishing that goal and a number of organizations that should be involved in such an effort.

2. What is the Commonwealth's overall responsibility for and commitment to graves in private cemeteries?

With regard to small volunteer organizations, tax credits may not be an attractive incentive. Tax credits are generally taken on expenditures already made and claimed after the fact. This may present both cash flow and financial accounting problems for small organizations. Additionally, a tax-exempt organization -- as most are -- would be unable to use such a credit.

On the other hand, a tax credit may be an attractive and useful incentive to encourage private property owners to maintain cemeteries on their land. Given the number of private cemeteries requiring maintenance, a tax credit of this sort could have large fiscal implications.

3. Are the recommended funding levels for individual cemeteries or markers under this program comparable with the funding levels under the Confederate grave care program?

Comparisons between this funding program and that the Confederate grave care program will inevitably be made. If funding levels for the Revolutionary War veterans' graves are in excess of what is available for the Confederate grave care program the groups caring for Confederate graves and those interested in Confederate heritage can be expected to push for greater state financial commitments for that program.

Finally, the Commission may wish to consider the following observations regarding administration of such a program:

JLARC recommends that DHR be given at least temporary responsibility for a program of Revolutionary War grave care. Any agency given the task of managing the program will have concerns about the responsibilities involved and the resources needed to do this work.

Currently at DHR two full time staff manage the 235 nonstate appropriations appropriated by the General Assembly. Requiring a Revolutionary War grave care program to be administered by either of these staff would reduce their ability to administer the nonstate grants in an effective and timely manner. In addition, we note that:

1. The ongoing administrative requirements associated with a Revolutionary War grave care program may be greater than the JLARC report anticipates.

Program responsibilities can be expected to include:

Responding to numerous telephone calls, emails and letters inquiring about all facets of the program and its administration.

Presentations to interested groups and written articles to introduce and promote the program.

Research and major technical assistance to contact or refer callers to curators, engineers, masons and other specialists for cost estimates and for development of specifications for getting the work done.

Developing promotional literature, program guidelines and funding criteria.

Reviewing and approving the documentation submitted to establish eligibility for the funding.

Developing a mailing list, form letters, survey report forms, financial forms, etc.

2. JLARC's funding recommendation appears to address only those costs associated with an FTE to manage the program with no provision for associated non-personal services costs.
3. Finding a willing and qualified individual or group to administer the program on a contract basis may be difficult.

Administering the program on a contract basis could require that an agency incur costs to hire a group that is prepared to do the work. In past years, DHR has had success with such a contract, but finding a willing and able organization to assume the duties could be difficult. Since such grants would be public monies, contracting with a nonstate organization could result in either the need for greater monitoring from the state agency or problems with administering state funds.

In summary, DHR believes the report provides a wealth of information on which to base decisions concerning the establishment of an incentive program for the care of Revolutionary War veterans' graves. We are sensitive to the fact that there will be pragmatic details to be worked out in any program that comes out of decisions made at this time. Accordingly, we are pleased to offer programmatic and administrative suggestions in this memorandum and will look forward to seeing the final results. At the policy level, as the Commission and Assembly members grapple with the important question of Revolutionary War grave protection, we hope that they also will be mindful of the full scope of the challenge of abandoned cemeteries and gravesites in Virginia.
